380 Opponents Can't Sway Coast Council; Won't Approve Vote

Opponents of the proposed Interstate 380 extension from San Bruno to Pacifica who think they may change the minds of Pacifica officials better think again.

On Monday, as they have in the past in no uncertain terms, Pacifica council members emphatically backed the freeway, while refusing to place the matter on a municipal ballot next April.

The council had received three letters concerning the proposed project. Two were in favor of the council's position.

Mrs. Barbara L. Bascom said she thought it would bring industry to Pacifica "that will help provide better conditions for Pacificans."

Mrs. Bascom explained that by better conditions she meant publicly financed youth centers, beach cleaning and better schools and possibly employment.

Mrs. Lydia Lewis said "the greatest good for the greatest number is the only criteria in government decisions."

The third letter, requesting the matter be placed on the April, 1972, municipal ballot, came from Gary J. Fulmer.

He said that in view of all the controversy over the proposed freeway, "and the fact that the citizens have not yet had a chance to indicate how they feel," the matter ought to be voted on.

Fulmer suggested a possible ballot proposition requiring a simple yes or no answer to the question of "Shall the ordinance (The people of the city of Pacifica do ordain that they are in favor of the construction of freeway 380) be adopted?"

He said he thought the residents ought to have the opportunity to express themselves on such an important issue and that it is the duty of the elected officials to first ascertain and then support the will of the people.

Councilman Harland Minshew, after Fulmer had read his prepared statement, said, "We are supporting the majority."

"I second that," said Councilman Stan Farber. He added that as far as he was concerned the matter has been settled with a legal agreement between Pacifica and the state. (Please See Page 2, Column 7)

A Complicated Maze, But—

D.C. Man Wins S-S for Spouse

By FRANK LAPIERRE

The Social Security system sometimes operates in mysterious ways, but it seems to work.

At least Enaco (Nick) Gabriellini of Daly City will agree today that the complicated Social Security maze works.

For several months he debated the point. However Thursday Nick had a change of heart.

Thursday, officials of the Mission District Social Security office, which handles claims from that section of San Francisco and also Brisbane, South San Francisco and Daly City, finally decided the retired welder did indeed have a wife and that she was born 62 years ago on April 4, 1909.

For months Nick had tried to convince the Claims Department of the Social Security Administration that his wife had reached the age where she was entitled to certain benefits.

Unfortunately, a fire had destroyed the birth records of Anna Schmitke Gabriellini at the Vista Grande Elementary School in Daly City some years ago.

Everyone knew Mrs. Gabriellini, who has been confined to an East Palo Alto hospital for the past 18 years, was 62.

Nick knew it, Chamber of Commerce Manager Peter J. Markovich attended the same school and knew Anna, and at least seven other citizens were ready to make sworn affidavits attesting to Mrs. Gabriellini's age.

Such statements are not acceptable as proof in a case of this nature, Nick was told by the Social Security hierarchy.

Nick called The Times for assistance.

Mrs. Bernie Ford, claims representative at the Social Security Office on South Van Ness Avenue, explained the ins-and-outs of establishing an age identity for Mrs. Gabriellini to this paper: County records of birth, school registrations, baptismal certificate, any official record.

Mrs. Gabriellini was born at 193 Santa Barbara Street, Daly

City by midwife. She attended Vista Grande School. Her records of attendance went up in smoke some years ago.

All other avenues, except one, were explored with negative results.

In Santa Cruz County October 27, 1925 Enaco (Nick) Gabriellini married Anna Schmitke who was only 17 years old at the time, according to the official marriage license.

Because she was a minor, Anna's mother, Catherine, had to make a sworn affidavit giving her consent. This would establish her birth date as "sometime in 1908."

A record of the couple's only daughter was filed in San Mateo County noting that Anna was 19 at the time of her daughter's birth on March 29, 1929.

However, both dates conflicted with Nick's contention his wife was born in 1909—not 1908 or 1910.

In fact, Anna had a brother, Charles, born in 1910 and she wasn't a twin.

Mrs. Ford worked long and hard to satisfy the requirements needed to get Nick's wife, unable to care for herself, the much-needed financial benefits due her $73.60 monthly.

Nick receives a small retirement pension and social security. (Please See Page 3, Col. 2)

Gregorio Is Rapped for 380 Stand

Pacifica's city officials have charged that State Sen. Arlen Gregorio is representing a special interest group instead of the city in the matter of the proposed extension of Interstate 380 from San Bruno to the coast.

The charge was made, and almost in the form of a resolution, at a meeting of the city's council members with Gregorio Saturday morning at the Muffin Mine Restaurant.

Gregorio was late for the 7:30 a.m. engagement and the Pacifica council took the opportunity to discuss what matters it would take up with the senator.

Councilman Harland Minshew indicated he was upset by the fact that Gregorio had not taken a definite stand on the 380 extension.

Minshew asked that a resolution be passed stating that it was felt Gregorio was not properly representing the city in the matter. No action was taken.

When Gregorio arrived, Councilman Nick Gust led an attack on the senator regarding the 380 controversy that hardly left Gregorio an opportunity to respond.

Gust said he was surprised that Gregorio had requested an

Mayor of Millbrae Won't Run

Millbrae Mayor James O'Connor yesterday announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election to city office when his term expires in April.

He said he is making the announcement early, to give other citizens a fair chance at running for election to the city council.

Mayor O'Connor's second four-year term, and Vice Mayor William Glang's first four-year term, end in April. Whether Glang will seek re-election has not yet been announced. Three other council posts, those of Bernard Esser, Harold Purpus and Arthur Lepore, are not up for election.

O'Connor said he would seek election to the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, "if Bob St. Clair moves from Millbrae to seek the Assembly."

Supervisor Robert St. Clair, a resident of Millbrae, has indicated he may be a candidate for the State Assembly, if Assembly Leo Ryan seeks election to Congress.

"I am very interested in the Board of Supervisors," said O'Connor, "but I am not stepping out of this race to make myself available for it. If I wanted to do the best thing politically, I'd stay on the council. That would put me in a better position."

O'Connor said he would seek the supervisory post "by appointment and by election," if St. Clair vacates the seat.

Aside from that possibility, he said, "I want to spend more time with my family."

O'Connor, a Republican, has served as a member of the county's Criminal Justice Commission, vice chairman of the Mayor's Council, chairman of the North County Council of Cities, a member of the County Probation Board, on Civil Defense and on numerous study groups.

Before moving to Millbrae ten years ago, he was on the San Bruno Police Commission, and the San Bruno Recreation Commission.

"I feel that Millbrae has one of the finest working councils on the Peninsula, now," he said, "and we also have the finest city administrator and group of department heads you could possibly imagine, for a city of our size."

He said, "There are 21,000 wonderful people in this city, I hope some of them will step forward and make themselves available for City Council."

O'Connor said he probably would "actively support" candidates in the election.

Zidich New DC Treasurer

Anthony (Tony) Zidich, a Daly City realtor, was named Monday to fill the unexpired term of City Treasurer Joseph Lewkowitz who resigned his post last month.

The appointment was approved unanimously by the four members of the city council at the regular Monday meeting.

In accepting the appointment, Zidich thanked the city "for the confidence you have placed in me" and said he would "try to live up to this confidence."

Last month Lewkowitz, citing increased business demands, stepped down from the post he had held for 16 years.

The outgoing City Treasurer told the council following their announcement that "you've made a good choice (in selecting Zidich)."

Zidich has been active in many community affairs during his 15-year residence in Daly City.

He is expected to resign as chairman of the city's Recreation Commission, a post he assumed earlier this year after serving on the commission since April 14, 1969.

He is past-president of the Westlake Subdivisions Improvement Association (WSIA) and was a director for six years, until he decided not to run for another term this year.

A member of the Daly City General Plan Citizen's Committee during its study of the city in 1967, Zidich has also been active in the current Knowles Avenue Corridor Relocation Advisory Committee.

Zidich is office manager for the Daly City-based Gene Harrington Realty Company on Southgate Avenue. He is also a director of the San Francisco Real Estate Board which encompasses Daly City.

Married, the new city treasurer lives with his wife, Carole, and daughter, Debra, at 131 South Mayfair Avenue. His term expires on April 18.

Fire Chief Ritzmann Resigning D.C. Post

Daly City Fire Chief Herbert Ritzmann announced Monday he would step down from the post he has held for the past seven years, effective January 14, 1972.

He was the second top level city official to leave in the past month.

Earlier, City Treasurer Joseph Lewkowitz resigned because of increased business demands.

Chief Ritzmann will temporarily join the State Fire Marshal's office in Sacramento on a contract basis to conduct a survey of convalescent homes in Northern California sponsored by the Housing, Education and Welfare department.

"The new job will be quite a challenge and I'm really looking forward to it," Ritzmann said. "My wife and I have been talking about my retirement for some time, and about moving back to the (Sacramento) Valley. When this job came along it was too good to pass up."

Ritzmann has been in the fire service for the past 28 years.

He began his career as a fireman in the Lodi Volunteer Fire Department in 1943 and served as Assistant Fire Chief of the regular Lodi Fire Department from 1961 to 1962.

Ritzmann moved to the Bay Area to become chief of the former Bayshore Fire District and joined the Daly City Fire Department as a Battalion Chief when that district was annexed to Daly City in 1963. He later was promoted to assistant chief.

Pacifica Home Occupation Law Reviewed; Redraft Due

Pacifica's home occupation ordinance got a once over Monday for at least the third time in the past two years, and it still has to be redrafted in an effort to cover all contingencies.

The purpose of the ordinance is to attempt to preserve the residential character of the neighborhoods. A secondary purpose is to prevent complete conversion from a residence to full-fledged business enterprises in the home.

But the obvious problem yet to be resolved is where to draw the line in establishing the dos and don'ts.

Some of the questions posed were what to do about the Avon Lady who keeps her supplies in her home, but sells house to house. Is this warehousing? If

Work Furlough Link To Burglary Ring

The common denominator that first led police to suspect that a well organized robbery team was operating in the Bay Area is the State Prison work furlough program.

This was brought out during talks with a team of Daly City detectives that have been working on the complex case in cooperation with police from San Carlos, South San Francisco, San Bruno, San Francisco and as far away as Fremont.

To date the theory has resulted in the arrest of two persons on charges of armed robbery, and the issuance of warrants for four others, including two women.

The Fremont incident was a blown safe at an auto agency in which credit cards and a shotgun were stolen.

Police think the same ring is responsible for the Denny's restaurant holdup two weeks ago, the holdup of the White Oaks Pharmacy on September 29 and again on November 17, and similar armed holdups up and down the Peninsula.

Sgt. John Kolbman and Detective Art Glass said each of the suspects was either on the prison work furlough program from San Quentin or a recent "graduate" of the prison system.

From a long list of suspects they determined that six persons were involved, in various combinations, with the series of robberies that began hitting the area in late September when the White Oaks Pharmacy was council found itself in the difficult position of trying to avoid as many personal interpretations as it could.

City Manager Jim Swayne said the council should look to the appeals procedure as the

Millbrae Planners OK Hamburger Stand

The action came suddenly and quietly Monday, but Millbrae's Planning Commission approved a hamburger stand across from St. Dunstan's.

No ordinary hamburger stand to be sure, but one of the MacDonald's chain of shops, modified to fit into Millbrae's ideas of planning, and accompanied by a Goodyear tire (and auto accessories) store on property owned by Earl Wilms.

When the project was first proposed last spring, it was virtually thrown out of city hall, to the tune of Millbrae's favorite song: "We don't like drive-ins."

Since then, Wilms' plan has been modified, re-drawn, re-defined, and re-planned.

Last night, Commissioners objected again to MacDonald's roof lighting, to the possibility of bargain item signs inside Goodyear's service stalls, and discussed whether there would be a traffic problem when swarms of St. Dunstan's mothers arrived to pick up their carloads of youngsters.

They asked whether MacDonald's planned a lighted flagpole, and were told there was none on the plan, but that one might be asked for, later.

Dick Slater, speaking for MacDonald's, said the sign proposed for the walk-in hamburger shop "will be the smallest in Northern California."

Slater asked for a change in the proposed wording, on a use permit for Goodyear's, saying it was "too restrictive."

"We want to be able to sell the same things as Firestone's, and U.S.E., across the street," he said.

Planning Commissioners agreed to alter the wording and then moved to approve the proposed combination of three stores, with 12 special conditions.

They were much quicker about turning down Neil Vanucci's plan to build four apartments above retail stores at 348 Millbrae Avenue, and voted 5-0 for denial.

Pacific Telephone won a quick but grudging approval for plans to expand its building at 10 Magnolia Avenue. Planners said they did not think this kind of expansion had been in mind when the original building was approved some ten years ago, and that they would oppose any future additions.

Pacific Telephone must also re-subdivide the property, which is now in four or five lots, into one lot, they said.

Commissioners approved a variance for Robert Rudolph to build a non-conforming garage entrance at his home, 6 Corte Princessa.

They granted quick approval to a new free-standing Standard Oil sign at Millbrae and Avador.

City Atty. John Sherman said although he sympathizes with Karczewski, and would like to draft an ordinance that is specific and covers every home occupation business in the city, it is a physical impossibility.

Council did make numerous suggested changes in the proposed ordinance, including the deletion of the necessity of approval for a permit by a zoning administrator (the city manager), which Karczewski thought gave one man too much power.

"This council is bending over backward to help the person with a home occupation," said Sherman. "The easiest ordinance to draw up would be one that says there will be no home occupations in a residential area."

At a date to be announced later, the city staff, chamber of commerce representatives and those persons in the city holding home occupation permits will meet to discuss the problems involved in drawing up an adequate ordinance.

From December 20 to January 3 no fines will be charged at the Daly City Public Library.

City Librarian Samuel Chandler said he hoped patrons would use the opportunity to return books and other materials which might be long overdue.

"Some materials are many years overdue yet they are public property and should be returned," Chandler said.

At least 53 vital books and a similar number of phonograph records have been overdue since the moratorium of last Christmas season.

Many of these items, he said, are subject to requests from patrons whose needs cannot be filled because the material has not been returned.

"The thoughtlessness of some people," the librarian said, "circumvents the purpose of the public library, besides costing the taxpayer money that has been budgeted for the public good."

other study of Sharp Park Road. He said the city has been studying that road for years.

"You're not representing our city. You're representing a small group of people," said Gust.

Mayor Grace McCarthy said the senator should have checked with the city before seeking another study.

Gregorio said he merely was seeking alternatives to the proposed 380 routing. An obviously upset group of council members reiterated that such studies have been done over and over in an attempt to get the best design for a cross county lateral.

Also present at the meeting was Charles Trefletti, an executive with Challenge Homes and member of the board of directors of the Pacific Chamber of Commerce. He also is chairman of the chamber's Highways and Traffic Safety Committee.

Trefletti asked whether Gregorio's requested study would mean more delays in securing a road. The answer was that none west of Skyline.

Gregorio also was asked who were the persons who urged him to request the study. Were they engineers? Had they ever driven down Sharp Park Road?

The senator responded that he had letters from many people - from San Bruno.

"How many do you have from Pacifica, that really represent anyone?" asked Gust.

Trefletti produced a fistful of green cards, questionnaires on the desirability of 380 that were sent to Pacifica households.

"These are people who want this freeway," said Trefletti, indicating there were upwards of 250 responses with the majority saying yes and more responses coming in every day.

The council members stood their ground that the highway must start at the airport and end at Pacifica.

"This group (of conservationists) against the highway don't care where the highway goes," said Minshew. "They just want to stop the growth of the coastline."

Councilman Stan Farber indicated that the opposition has never really informed itself by reading material and checking the routes. "They simply don't know the facts," added Councilman Dan Modena.

One other viewpoint was entered into the controversy. It was given by Mrs. Charles Starr.

She pointed out that Pacifica has no hospital and that during the work day up to eighty per cent of the male population is gone, leaving women and children "totally dependent on (the elected officials) for our common defense and general welfare."

Mrs. Starr emphasized again and again that the women of the city would be helpless and very vulnerable in any emergency without a cross county lateral to give them some alternative exit from the city.

"We're trapped here," she said. "This is unique, to Pacifica. Other cities don't have this problem."

Although the plea undoubtedly impressed the senator, as did the entire morning's conversation, he still did not commit himself other than to say "a lateral is needed. But I want what is best."

A ribbon cutting to officially open the Westborough Boulevard extension from Junipero Serra to El Camino Real in South San Francisco was held yesterday.

Taking part in the ceremony were members of the County Board of Supervisors, city officials and representatives of the Westborough Water District, all contributors to the new roadway.

The group had lunch following the ceremony at the California Country Club.

Construction on the 1.15 mile extension began on May 11, 1970. Total construction cost is $2.07 million. Of this the county put up $1,325,000, South San Francisco paid $684,000 and the Fulmer said that to his knowledge no survey has been taken of the entire community. "I don't see what you've got to lose," he said.

Councilman Nick Gust once again reiterated his position that the council is wasting its time listening to opponents of the freeway who have not taken the time to do what he considers an adequate and comprehensive study of the entire matter. "I would like to see us file this letter," he said.

Mayor Grace McCarthy said she questioned the legitimacy of a simple yes or no answer on a ballot measure, saying there is no simple yes or no answer to the problem of insufficient lateral roadways for the city.

Mrs. McCarthy also said she felt the residents already have had sufficient time to express themselves at the various public meetings on the subject of interstate 380 extension.

"First we have to take the advice of the experts in the field," she said. "We've all been out talking to people at homeowners' meetings. This has had a great deal of exposure. We appreciate your concern."

San Bruno Cluster Home Proposal Is Defeated by City Councilmen

Deane & Deane were flatly turned down at Monday night's San Bruno City Council meeting, as they asked approval for a planned development zoning to permit them to build half of a 496-unit "clustered home" development north of Sharp Park Road.

They plan to go ahead with the other half, in Pacifica, where it is already zoned planned unit development. Deane & Deane Vice-President Bob Hardesty said that they are now considering a "Daly City" type development for the San Bruno portion, zoned R-1, single family.

Hardesty was appealing a similar turndown by the San Bruno Planning Commission. Principal reason given for the unanimous rejection was that the plans presented appeared to be too vague. In PD zoning, the councilmen reminded the developers, the plans have to be pretty precise and detailed.

Hardesty asked that the entire development be considered together, the half in Pacifica as well as the portion in San Bruno.

Although most of the 67-acre development would have been in Pacifica, 258 of the homes would have been in San Bruno. Thus, he said, although the portion in San Bruno would have had a density of 10.9 units per acre, Pacifica's portion would have 5.5 units per acre, for an overall average of 7.4 units, which, he claimed, would have been within the eight units per acre average for R-1 zoning.

His concept called for homes being clustered together, thus leaving most of the site in its natural state. Built on the slopes, the homes would climb down the hill as many as six at a time, with parking on top and on bottom. Since some garages would be beneath some of the living units, they would not be able to sell the lots with the homes; thus they would have a condominium development.

Homeowners would also share in ownership of a swimming pool clubhouse complex as well as a series of tot lots.

His firm was not considering annexing their entire site to one city or the other, he said, because he understood that the same cities would still have to provide services under mutual aid agreements, annexation would take at least a year, neither city would be willing to give up land to the other, and he felt it better to get requirements of both cities into the development.

He complained that when he asked the planners for a decision that night, he did not mean that he wanted a "yes or no" answer, and was shocked when they said "no." He was willing to work with the planners' staff and make adjustments, he insisted.

Mayor Maury Hamilton told Hardesty he misunderstood the function of mutual aid agreements; they were merely back-up services for emergencies. He asked that the council discuss the plan.

Planning Commission Chairman Victor Ogrey denied the charge and insisted the planners considered the rezoning on all its merits, considering the indefiniteness of the application. Other speakers charged the Planning Commission had been insulted.

Councilmen discussed whether to reject the rezoning "without prejudice" which would leave Deane & Deane free to present a new plan, or whether simply to reject them flatly. They voted on a flat rejection.

Councilmen gave approval to an appeal from Lincoln Properties to be allowed to build their 176-unit "Phase II" of the 688-unit development, The Place, on Sneath Lane, with buildings 25 feet apart at five points, instead of the required 30 feet.

Jay McLarry of the Menlo Park-based building firm told councilmen that 155 units of the 233-unit Phase I are already rented and that there are only 11 children.

"That's seven per cent," he said, "and we plan to keep it to that ratio."

He promised to beautify the carports in Phase I — an apparent source of complaints from local residents driving by on Sneath Lane.

Their initial plans had the buildings at their proper distance, he explained, but demands of the fire department for wider fire roads, and demands of the terrain, caused some of the buildings to become "pushed together," he said.

Nowhere at those five points, he said, do windows look into each other. The buildings are perpendicular instead of parallel to each other, he explained, at those points.

In granting approval, and thus overruling the Planning Commission, the Council warned that this would not be permitted in Phase III.

Police Inspector Tim Casey arrested a second suspect in the ring — James Edward Dudley, 29, of 230 Duncan Street, San Francisco.

Dudley also was released recently from the state prison.

Police said it was "too much of a coincidence" that Smith had worked at the Dobb's House, a South San Francisco catering service, in late September and that the firm had two of its liquor trucks hijacked during this period.

Two other male suspects in the ring that is believed to have netted thousands of dollars in cash and hard drugs in the past two months, are Dean Ernest Lakey, 34, and John Stanley Szmniwicz, of Daly City.

Police did not identify the two women suspects. Lakey was recently released from San Quentin.

On Nov. 20, 1971, Szmniwicz did not return to prison from his work assignment in the Bay Area.

Where the suspect worked or what he did on this work furlough program, in which he was driven to his job each day and returned to prison each night in a state-owned car, is not known.

Work Furlough

In most cases police themselves are not told by prison authorities who these work furlough participants in their areas are for fear police will harass them.

"We do not intend to harass them, but we would like to know if they are in our areas," Kolman said.

There is another "wanted" suspect who police identified as Edward J. Knapp, 37.

Knapp was a cook at one of the restaurants held up and was on the work furlough program. The ring is also suspect in using what is commonly called "ten percenters."

These are "fingermen" who get a job—any job—and stay only long enough to figure out who is in charge, what time the boss comes to work, where the money is kept and such other details that will insure the success of a robbery.

Knapp may be such a finger-man, police said.

Shortly after the holdup of the Daly City restaurant where he worked, Knapp allegedly stole a fellow employee's car and disappeared.

Police admit they were baffled for a time on the professional conduct of the robbers until they began comparing notes.

Detective Sgt. Jack Rhodes of South San Francisco, Detective Sgt. Tom Bowers of San Carlos, Inspector Casey and Detectives Kolman and Glass agreed, after hours of screening, that at least six suspects were involved and that these male suspects were either on work furlough programs or recently released from San Quentin.

as a six-foot blond haired youth; a dark haired youth about five-foot nine and another youth with thick hair.

At 1:10 a.m. San Bruno picked up a young man and woman in an auto answering the description broadcast. They were arrested and booked on robbery charges at County Jail.

The two were identified as Earl Lee Trotter, 27, a sheetrock hanger of San Jose, and Virginia Rosemary Pena, 22, a waitress of San Pablo.

The woman became upset after her arrest, police said, and then was booked.

Trotter was identified by witnesses as one of the participants, police said.

Police said that after drinking for some time, two of the men suddenly walked up to the bar, one holding a gun, and announced, "This is a stickup. Give us the cash."

Police said the shot was fired apparently to emphasize the fact that they meant business.

Within minutes after the holdup, San Bruno Police Officer Tom Manning and Reserve Officer Clyde Hinkley spotted the suspect car westbound on the new 380 extension.

As it turned north on Freeway 280, the officers stopped the vehicle.

Four occupants, including a woman, jumped from the car and fled, police said.

Manning and Hinkley managed to apprehend two of the suspects. Two others fled into the California Golf and Country Club.

For more than an hour, six San Bruno units, backed by a sheriff's department helicopter and a dog unit from South San Francisco, combed the wooded area but were unable to find the pair.

ty benefit check entitled him. He is required to pay some $111 monthly for his wife's care.

The importance of the Social Security department's decision could not be overstressed by Nick, who is currently trying to balance his meager budget to pay property taxes on a small three room frame home he owns only blocks from where his wife was born.

"First they told me my wife wasn't entitled to social security because I couldn't prove her age. It was as if she never existed," Nick said.

He was sent a form letter on August 26, 1971 from a "Miss Higaki, claims representative for the district manager," explaining "we have been unable to obtain certain additional proof of age and need your cooperation."

Nick cooperated. After inquiries into the case began, Nick received a second letter, dated Dec. 2, 1971.

In this letter Richard M. Lee, chief, Claims Authorization Branch, informed Nick in another form letter that "after considering all the evidence submitted" they had changed their minds in the Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance branch of the Social Security Administration.

They decided to send Mrs. Gabriellini a check "rather than to you."

After considering the matter, Mrs. Ford noted Mrs. Gabriellini's health condition and Nick was told he would receive a check for the specified amount.

Nick got some more good news when he was told a check would be in the mail by Jan. 3 for some $580 benefits retroactive to last April.

S.S.F. Backs Land Annex

South San Francisco officials have agreed to go ahead with plans to annex 13 acres of uninhabited lands along Junipero Serra bordering Daly City in the Westborough section.

The property is being developed and annexation would provide police and fire services. It is the last remaining unannexed property in the area between Daly City and South San Francisco.

In addition to Daly City and South San Francisco, the property is also bordered by San Bruno, Colma and Pacifica. Two school districts cover the area, plus special districts, all recommending approval of the annexation.

Millbrae Solves Long Agenda

Faced with "the longest agenda in the city's history," Millbrae councilmen last week whipped through the community's business in only two hours.

They approved an ordinance adopting the general plan for development of the Ryan-Marocco office buildings at Millbrae Avenue and Old Bayshore, and specified that the builder must pay 80 per cent of the cost of installing traffic signals at that intersection.

Councilmen authorized installation of an alarm monitoring panel in the police department, by Wells Fargo Signal Systems.

A mutual aid agreement with the State Fire Department, whereby both groups of firefighters will come to each other's aid, was approved.

They agreed to a $15,500 contract with Kirker-Chapman, for the consulting firm to come up with a master streets and highways plan for the city, within 180 days.

Mayor James O'Connor reported the city's annual audit "gives us a clean bill of health," but suggested some new approaches be considered for next year.

Other councilmen agreed, and referred the question to finance chairman Bernard Esser.

Councilmen introduced a new animal control ordinance, agreed to spend $1743 to clear up an alleyway-easement problem behind Ashton Avenue, and decided to take down a street-light they had recently had installed.

When the resident who had asked that the light be installed moved, she was told that her neighbors had petitioned for the removal because the pole is so ugly.

The council approved spending $1977 to remodel a storm drain on El Camino Real, because of the Division of Highways insistence.

They referred to Councilman William Glang a report that the city's employee life insurance premiums are about to be increased 17 per cent.

Mayor O'Connor reported that some agreement might be reached on the El Capitan Drive extension proposal, by the council's next meeting, December 21.

Skyline Center Bids Sought

The San Mateo Junior College District Board of Trustees last week ended more than five years of planning and issued a call for bids on a new campus center building at Skyline College, San Bruno.

The board voted, 5-0, at its regular meeting to ask for bids on the facility which is estimated to cost about $2.43 million.

The cost of the project will be shared as follows: $681,963 from state resources; $500,000 from federal sources; and $1.25 million from district sources.

District Assistant Superintendent for Business Affairs Matteo Fasanaro told the board that the district might have even more funds available for fiscal year 1977-78 if the district can sell its Baldwin Avenue property in San Mateo prior to July, 1973.

As things now stand, he said, the district plans to levy a matching capital outlay tax of two cents in 1972-73 and 2.4

cents in 1973-74 and to restrict the community services levy to a maximum of three cents in 1972-73 and 2.6 cents in 1973-74.

Fasanaro said bids will be asked for on December 22.

In other action at the meeting at the College of San Mateo, the board:

—Approved a 4.8 per cent cost of living increase for most employees in the district. Chancellor Clifford Erickson said the raise's starting date ought to be at the earliest possible date which is consistent with rules and guidelines set up by the federal Pay Board. The vote on the matter was 4-1 with Trustee James Tormey voting nay. His reason for voting against the measure was that he is unhappy with the method the board uses to determine a wage increase.

—Learned that community services programs at CSM and Canada College, Redwood City, are expected to actually turn a profit in spring 1972. According to figures released by the two schools, it is predicted that Canada's program will produce a surplus of about $1,600 and CSM will end up with one of about $2,000. In the past there had been concern expressed by certain elements in the community that these programs are a financial drain on the district.

—Approved an application to participate in three federal student financial aid programs for the next fiscal year. The trio of programs, as seen by the district, could bring the district as much as $2 million in federal funds. This year, the district has managed to obtain about $1.48 million.

—Approved the appointment of 47 advisory committees at the three campuses in the district. The committees are composed of laymen and professionals from various fields in the community. Their purpose is to assist the departments at the schools in setting priorities and curriculum, particularly in job-related categories, and courses.

Staff Change Seen

A change in the staff of the South San Francisco Information and Referral Center on Linden Avenue appears certain.

Office member Al Gonzales said Wednesday that he and two other members of the office will be relieved of their duties, effective December 31 — because of alleged incompetency.

Mrs. Eva Rendon, director of the office, did not deny it, but said she would prefer not to talk about it until an official statement has been released.

The third office member, Mrs. Rebecca Bogdanovich, became very indignant that, whether true or not, it was being made public. Asked whether she had been fired, she said, "I have not."

Board member Louis Morrill, who was in the office at the time, said there was no intention of the board to make any action they took public at this time.

Referring to Gonzales' statements, Morrill said, "If the staff wishes to do this, that's their prerogative. I can't speak for the board."

Board Chairman Ruben Avelar was contacted. He said he too was not free to discuss the matter, because it occurred in executive session.

"I don't want to do or say anything that might endanger appeals," he said.

Avelar also said that any personnel action taken against anyone (or all) of the three would be followed with a written statement. He did not say when that statement would be sent out.

The action was taken at the board's regular monthly meeting on November 30 at the Martin School.

According to Gonzales the three office staff members were at the meeting and asked to leave because the board wanted to hold an executive session.

He said they were then called back into the meeting an hour later and informed that they would be relieved of their duties, and that an official letter would follow.

Gonzales said he will be starting a formal grievance procedure through the County Economic Opportunity Commission (EOC) in Redwood City. He said the make-up of the board does not adequately represent the poor as is the organization's purpose.

Referring to the charge of incompetency, Gonzales said, "I've been blamed. It has to be proven to that fact."

The South San Francisco Information and Referral Center is one of five such centers set up in the county through the EOC to aid the poor in finding jobs and aiding them in other ways.

A Close Look at Sewer Problems on Peninsula

By GEORGE GOLDING

There's something that stinks, about sewers, and some North County Councilmen say it is not just the sewage.

They say the Regional Water Quality Control Board's policies also smell pretty bad.

One outspoken critic of the Regional Board is R. David Martin of Burlingame, who repeatedly has complained every time his city meets one set of rules, the Regional Board adopts a new set.

In the past few years, Burlingame has spent over $1,500,000 improving its sewage treatment system to meet Regional Board requirements.

The result, Burlingame is today under a "cease and desist" order, which can lead to prosecution by the State Attorney General's office, for failure to comply.

Burlingame is not alone.

Every sewage district in San Mateo County is also under a "cease and desist order," or under a "time schedule" directive from the Board, setting deadlines on which specified improvements must be made.

According to William Gingrich of the Regional Board's staff:

"No waste water discharger in the Bay Region, is meeting all requirements of the Board, all the time."

Gingrich admits the Board has made its requirements "more stringent" from time to time, and says the requirements may not be the same for Millbrae, or San Mateo, as they are for neighboring Burlingame.

Requirements for each of the 170 dischargers in the Bay Region, are set individually, Gingrich said.

Millbrae Planning Assistant Dave Dawson is now trying to set up a meeting of North County Councilmen, City Attorneys, and administrators, to work out some uniform response to the Board's demands.

A joint effort is proposed, since Daly City, Millbrae, South San Francisco, San Francisco International Airport, San Bruno, Burlingame, San Mateo, the

Ottoboni New Colma Police Chief

Raymond Ottoboni Jr., in a split vote of the council, was appointed police chief of Colma last week.

The vote was 4 to 1 for his appointment with Councilwoman Rena Vallega dissenting—vociferously.

Ottoboni, 30, is the son of Colma Mayor Raymond Ottoboni. He has been acting police chief in that city since May 17. The former police chief, Dini Lagomarsino, died on May 12. Mrs. Vallega, in opposing the appointment, said that she wanted the official council record to reflect her opposition. In this way, she said, it would relieve her of any liabilities the city may suffer as a result of Ottoboni's appointment.

She felt that the mayor's son was not qualified for the job. Several others in the audience attending the meeting at the Colma City Hall also voiced opposition. Councilman Glen Duncan waved a petition allegedly signed by numerous merchants in the city attesting to Ottoboni's capability. However, the petition has never been officially recorded with the city.

Because of President Nixon's wage freeze Ottoboni's monthly salary will be $850. There is a one man police department.

S.S.F. Youth Council Approved

The South San Francisco Youth Advisory Council has finally been recognized by city officials.

Councilmen Monday night adopted a resolution recognizing the youth group "as a valuable source of public expression regarding community affairs."

Recognition has been held up for several weeks, principally until the city's park and recreation commissioners had an opportunity to make a report on their feelings about the new youth organization. Some concern had been expressed in the past that the youth would conflict with duties of the commissioners.

A report to the council from the commissioners indicated they were "impressed with the sincerity of purpose" of the youth, but thought there ought to be a demonstration period "before definitive action is taken to establish the Youth Advisory Council as a legal entity."

Merck & Co. chemical plant in South San Francisco, the South San Francisco Scavenger Company, and the Arthur "Buzz" Haskins construction site on the Cabot, Cabot & Forbes industrial park in South San Francisco, are all under Regional Board "cease and desist" pressure.

For that matter, so are Redwood City, Redwood Shores, Leslie Salt, Menlo Park, Pacifica, San Carlos and Belmont, Half Moon Bay, Montara, El Granada, Hunter's Point Naval Shipyard, and the South County Garbage and Refuse Disposal District.

Gingrich says the Board has issued a total of 83 "cease and desist" orders by last January 1, with 43 remaining then active, and 70 "time schedules" were in operation.

Since then, the nine-member board has activated 11 more "cease and desist" orders against cities and sewage districts in San Mateo County, for such reasons as "failure to comply" with Board directives regarding purity of sewage discharge waters, failure to discharge sewage in "deep water."

In addition, three "time schedules" were worked out for specific improvements to sewage plants in San Mateo County (locations) two San Mateo County matters were referred to the State Attorney General for possible prosecution, and half a dozen hearings were ordered against San Mateo County cities. These hearings might lead to "cease and desist" orders, Gingrich said.

The Board then establishes specific requirements for each discharger, says Gingrich. As an example, Burlingame's sewage outfall, for some reason has been exempted from the usual requirements regarding toxicity.

If there are violations of Board requirements, Gingrich says, the Board can then hold hearings and adopt "cease and desist" orders which "invariably" set deadlines for compliance.

If there is no action by a discharger, or if the Board feels there is not sufficient action, Board members can then refer (Continued on Page 28, Col. 1) the case to the State Attorney General's office for appropriate action.

The Regional Board gets its "muscle" from the State's Porter-Cologne Act of 1969, which outlines enforcement powers and procedures, although there has been a Water Quality Board since 1950.

Members of the Board, appointed by the State, include:

Chairman Hines Hyde, Campbell; Vice Chairman William C. Weber, a San Mateo Councilman; Ercole Caroselli of San Francisco; Dr. William Upton, a dentist, from San Rafael; Cecil Herrick of St. Helena; Syd Lippin, Martinez; Ed Teresi, San Jose; Barbara Erstman, Los Altos, and Jean Amear, San Francisco.

Basic procedural requirements are that each discharger must report to the Board its location, volume, content, and similar information.

The Board then establishes specific requirements for each discharger, says Gingrich.

Although their sewage may not meet Board standards, these cities districts, or commercial dischargers, have been able to prove that their sewage treatment plant laboratories are scientifically satisfactory, according to Archie Greenberg, chief of the public health lab service.

Burlingame, North San Mateo County Sanitary District, Menlo Park Sanitation District, Millbrae, San Francisco Water Department, Montara Sanitary District, Pacifica, Ideal Cement Company, Redwood City, Menlo Park, Daly City, Foster City, South San Francisco-San Bruno, San Carlos-Belmont, San Mateo, and the Fuller-O'Brien Paint Company in South San Francisco.

City Engineers in both Millbrae and Burlingame have complained from time to time that "sufficient action" too often includes writing a letter outlining the city's promise to meet "impossible" new requirements, every time one improvement has been made.

Burlingame has been under "cease and desist" orders for four years, despite having built the most advanced sewage treatment plant in the Bay Area.

One requirement that most San Mateo County cities have been able to meet, is that their treatment plant laboratories must be state-certified, before their reports will be accepted.

The process requires obtaining approval of lab techniques, personnel, and equipment, by the State Department of Public Health.

After surveying the possibilities, engineers simply conclude that any such plan is impractical. Elected officials conclude that it would bankrupt city and county governments.

But, in September, the Board set up a hearing panel to determine whether a "cease and desist order" should be issued against South San Francisco, San Bruno, San Francisco International Airport, Millbrae, and Burlingame, for not joining to build a joint sewage treatment system with a "deepwater outfall" at some point at least 1,000 feet from the nearest shoreline of the Bay.

Gingrich says the Regional Board is acting under a federal directive, which requires them to produce a "basin plan" within four years.

When such a plan is in effect, he said, "everyone will know where he is, and where he is going for a year-and-a-half to three years, at least."

Gingrich notes that there are 800,000 gallons of sewage dumped into the Bay each day.

"Ninety-six per cent of this is within one of the 12 sub-regional areas, for which the Board is trying to promote a subregional sewage control development plan, or to promote development of alternate means for treatment and disposal of waste."

Which is where San Mateo county came in. The Board has been pushing San Mateo County and its cities, to join in a county-wide sewage disposal system.

After surveying the possibilities, engineers simply conclude that any such plan is impractical.

Elected officials conclude that it would bankrupt city and county governments.

But, in September, the Board set up a hearing panel to determine whether a "cease and desist order" should be issued against South San Francisco, San Bruno, San Francisco International Airport, Millbrae, and Burlingame, for not joining to build a joint sewage treatment system with a "deepwater outfall" at some point at least 1,000 feet from the nearest shoreline of the Bay.

Bruno Chamber Casino Night Halted by Law

Who blew the whistle on the San Bruno Chamber of Commerce annual fund-raising wing-ding, Casino Night, Saturday?

That's what angry chamber officials are wondering today. They were notified Friday by the Alcoholic Beverages Control Department that if they went ahead and held their Casino Night as planned the license of Russo's Restaurant, where the affair was being held, would be revoked.

The event went on because all of the tickets had been sold—but without most of the activities that had been planned. Guests played blackjack for fun only. Roulette wheels, crap tables and other "gambling" paraphernalia remained in storage.

There was some speculation that if the affair had been held in private quarters, where no liquor license was required, there would have been no trouble.

Numerous items donated by merchants which were to have figured in the fund-raising, were given away as door prizes. It all turned out to be simply a chamber Christmas party. The chamber must now seek a new fund-raiser.

Casino night has been an annual affair. The Chamber's directors thought that they had worked out a means of circumventing the state anti-gambling laws, since no money was involved in the actual play. However, it turned out that the complex rules used failed to satisfy state officials.

The petition for dissolution of marriage states that the Carlsons were married Jan. 17, 1952, and separated this month. Their children range in age from five years to 19 years.

ARTHUR MICHAEL, of Daly City, is currently playing the role of the infant King Ptolemy in ACT's production of Shaw's "Caesar and Cleopatra" at the Geary Theater. With no previous acting experience, nine-year-old Arthur was chosen for the role from a group of students in the ACT drama school. He is a fourth grade student at Westlake School. His mother, Mrs. Arthur Michael, is presently the Westlake School P-TA's Clothes Closet chairman and has been active as a room mother for the past five years.

OHS Yule Concert Tomorrow

The performing groups of the Oceana High School Music Department are preparing the selections they will perform at the school's annual Christmas Concert Band, a capella choir, December 16, at 8 p.m.

The student members of the Concert Band, A Capella Choir, Treble Choir, and Madrigal Singers are readying the various musical selections for presentation to the citizens of Pacifica and surrounding communities.

Instrumental highlights of the concert will feature the Advanced Band playing arrangements of the traditional sounds and carols of Christmas, as well as the ever popular "Sleigh Ride" by LeRoy Anderson. Members of the Advanced Concert Band comprised Oceana's popular Shark Marching Band during football season; they have since moved indoors to prepare their part for the concert.

Vocal highlights will feature the a capella choir performing selections from Benjamin Britten's "A Ceremony of Carols," the traditionally popular arrangement of "Carol of the Bells" by Wilhousky, and Leo Sowerby's arrangement of "The Snow Lay on the Ground." On a contemporary side, they will perform, accompanied by a brass ensemble, the dramatic "Canticle of Peace" by Joseph Clokey.

The Madrigal Singers (selected by audition from a capella choir members) will also perform with the brass ensemble the selection "Fanfare for Christmas."

The all-girl Treble Choir will perform unusual American folk carols with traditional American folk instrument accompaniments consisting of flute, glockenspiel, tambourine, and triangle.

FDR P-TA Will Hold Bake Sale

The Franklin Delano Roosevelt P-TA will hold its annual Christmas program and bake sale at 7:30 p.m. today in the school's multi-use room.

The program will consist of holiday music presented by the school's glee club and orchestra.

There also will be a sale of home baked goods, donated by the parents of the school children. Also on sale will be two-year planning calendars.

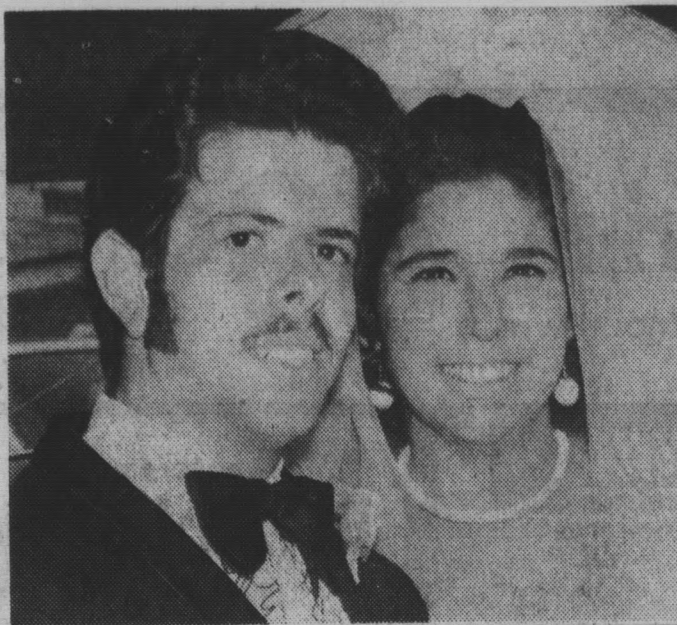

Mrs. William Moeller, ways and means chairman, heads the team of P-TA workers who will set up and organize the sales.

The flag presentation for this program will be done by Mrs. Joseph Acquastape's Campfire Girls.

Chapter to Meet

Xi Lambda Sigma Exemplar chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet at 8 p.m. December 20 at the home of Mrs. Dominic Cola, in San Bruno.

Secret Pal gifts will be exchanged.

THE CARL J. SAPORITAS are now at home in Daly City after their recent marriage in the Church of Epiphany, San Francisco. Mrs. Saporita is the former Joanne Sklavos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Sklavos of Daly City. The benedict is the son of the Carl Saporitas of San Francisco. Joanne is a graduate of Westmoor High and also attended College of San Mateo. Saporita was graduated from Balboa High, San Francisco, and works for Pacific Telephone.

LINDA MAR SHOPPING CENTER

The Jeff Scene

By SUE MCALLISTER

Daly City is a city containing numerous national back-grounds among its 70,000 citizens.

Each Christmas for the past few years an event to represent one of Daly City's rich cultures has been held at Jefferson High School.

This traditional event is the "Latin Christmas Posada," to be held tomorrow from 5-11 p.m.

The Posada, like Homecoming, has brought the school closer together, bridging a gap between students of various ethnic groups, since the Posada is only reflective of the number of students who care to participate for its success.

This year many groups will be present visibly at the Posada. They are: the Jeff band, A Capella Choir, Latino Dancers, Red Cross Club, Art Club, Sophomore Class, Latin American Club.

Groups sponsoring the flea market will be selling such items as candles, homebaked goods and first aid kits, jewelry, calendars and pinatas.

Jeff also is sponsoring an annual "Canned Food Drive For the Poor."

Each student is asked to take at least one can to help bring a little joy to others as well as give one the pleasure of knowing a lot of happiness since the mood of the Christmas should be "Give and You Shall Receive."

Speaking of giving — the Class of 1971 gave $77 of its remaining funds to the "Welfare Fund," established to help those who have needs they cannot afford.

Terra Nova Topics

By Rockie Montenegro

The Terra Nova Christmas Minstrel Troupe, made up of 50 persons, has begun its annual round of merry-making and entertaining at various handicapped children's centers and hospitals.

The Troupe, whose repertoire consists of singing min-strels, mimes, storybook characters, Uncle Wiggles, jesters, talking dolls, and a Santa Claus, will sing Christmas carols, perform storybook skits, give out presents, and engage in other yuletide activities.

Among the places the Troupe will visit are Fleishacker Center for the Handicapped, Forte del Norte (a school for handicapped children in San Bruno), Letterman's Veterans Hospital, and SF's Headstart Day Care Center.

The purpose of the Troupe is to bring a little enjoyment and delight to the less fortunate children, and to people who have to spend their Christmas away from home. It is also a way for the TN students to express their concern, and to give a little of themselves to others.

One student who will be participating in the program said that the Minstrel Troupe appealed to her because "it seems to be bringing back a part of Christmas that has been neglected amidst the commercialism."

The colorful entourage brings to mind Charles Dickens, sugar plums, and Hans Christian Andersen.

'Time for Livin' Theme of Pacifica Beauty Pageant

"Time for Livin'" will be the colorful theme of the sixteenth annual Miss Pacifica Pageant for which entries are now being sought. The stage settings, musical background, and costuming for the parade of contestants will carry out the show's title when it is presented this coming April at Terra Nova High School. Jim Strom, producer of the Chamber of Commerce sponsored event, said the show this year will be the most ambitious production planned since the start of the program in Pacifica.

He said it will be a show designed to depict the poise, grace, and beauty of the contestants who will be seeking the Miss Pacifica title and it will be a show designed to please the capacity audience always on hand.

Several changes have taken place in production format from years past that will better pace the production.

Among these are additional musical numbers and a production number which will feature all of the contestants.

The contestants will be showcased in "Time for Livin'" as they compete for the top scholarship prize of $1,000 and the various other scholarship awards from $100 to $500.

DANCERS — The Troubadors of the St. Francis Heights Dance and Music, 405 Lakeshire Drive, Daly City, have embarked on its annual "Winter Sunshine Tour" into San Francisco underprivileged and have-not organizations. Dancers (right) are part of The Troubador ensemble, left to right, Demary Dominguez, Janet Bishop and Caryn Ungaretti, all of Daly City.

Hansel and Gretel is the holiday offering which will be staged by the Oakland Ballet at Rioridan High school during the school holiday.

Mrs. John Voelker is the chairman of the presentation committee and she has arranged for two performances to be given on December 19 in the high school's auditorium, 175 Phelan Avenue in San Francisco.

According to Mrs. John Ferguson, the publicity chairman, there will be an afternoon performance at 2 p.m. with an evening show at 8 p.m. Tickets for either performance will be sold by Mrs. Richard Otis (756-0584) or Mrs. Voelker (487-2836).

A further note on the Rioridan Guild Cookbook: The chairman of the cook book sale will mail books to anyone sending $3.50 to Cook Books, Rioridan High School, 175 Phelan Ave., or books may be reserved in your name if you telephone 333-2690 or 826-4163. Mrs. Ferguson suggests that the books make excellent Christmas gifts for those hard to shop for women on your list.

MRS. ELIZABETH FUNDERBERG of the Fifty Plus Club reminds persons interested in the New Orleans, Florida and Nassau trip, being planned for February 18 through March 18, that reservations must be accompanied by an initial payment of $500 with the balance of $340 due on January 15.

Tour members will see the Carlsbad Caverns, the Astro-dome, Lake Charles and tour the Bayou on the Mark Twain River Boat. In Florida the localities will ride the glass bottom boat at Silver Springs and visit Weechi Waeki Springs to see the underwater performance with the aquamaids and aquanaughts. There will be a visit to Cypress Gardens and tours of Miami, Miami Beach and Fort Lauderdale before the travelers leave the mainland for Nassau aboard the T-S Flavia.

Homeward bound, they will visit Cape Kennedy, St. Augustine, Vicksburg, The Cowboy Hall of Fame, Old Town Albuquerque, The Plains Museum, the Painted Desert, the Arizona Petrified Forest and Meteor Crater.

For more information about the senior citizens sojourn call Mrs. Funderburg, 355-2184.

THE ROSE GARDEN BALL will be the theme of this year's gala New Year's Eve party being sponsored by the Festival Committee of the Our Lady of Mercy Church in Westlake.

Mrs. Donald Gianfermo, the publicity chairman, reports that James McCann and Mrs. Robert Rickert, representing the Westlake Catholic Men and the Westlake Catholic Women, respectively, will chair the party committee with Mrs. Michael Cooney and Mrs. Patrick Gibney being responsible for the decorations.

Westlakers have learned during past years that the Our Lady of Mercy party is one of this area's delightful traditions and a marvelous way to welcome in the new year.

Total price per person for the evening of fun will be $10, Mrs. Gianfermo said. Ticket holders will be served cocktails between 8 and 9 p.m. and a sit down, roast beef dinner will be served at 9 p.m.

Dancing to the music of Pete Maiorana and his group will begin at 10 p.m. and dancers will enjoy his distinctive musical styling well into the hours of the new year. Finger goods will be served to guests after midnight.

To make reservations, call Mrs. Richard Galliani (756-6312).

FRIENDS OUTSIDE are still collecting food and toys for the gigantic Christmas project they are planning for the families of men still in prison or recently released from prison. Food of all types is needed but a special appeal has been made for persons to donate hams or turkeys.

Toys for boys and girls of all ages are in short supply and needed soon! If you would like to help brighten the Christmas Lakeside Presbyterian Church in San Francisco.

Volunteers are working long hours to fill baskets for the season for these families please drop your donations by the huge Christmas party which will be staged in the Our Redeemer Lutheran Church in South San Francisco.

Special needs for three families include a stove for a family which is currently preparing food for six children on one burner, a set of twin beds for four little girls who are currently sharing one double bed and a single bed for a man who, at the present time, is making do with the floor.

If you can help, contact the Friends Outside office (564-8833).

D.C. Girl Scout at 'Northwest' Meet

Special Holiday
Program Feature
Of Luncheon

In keeping with the spirit of the holiday season the monthly meeting of the San Francisco Women's Auxiliary of the California Pharmaceutical Association will feature a special Christmas program on December 15.

The holiday luncheon will be held at the Lake Merced Golf Club. Chairman for the day include Mrs. John P. Creighton and Mrs. Maxwell Hendin.

Presenting a special dramatic Christmas reading will be Mrs. John A. Foley, State Public Relations Director of the auxiliary. The talented performer has been featured in many programs before women's groups around the Bay Area.

Miss Cathy Walters of Daly City Girl Scout Troop 2584 attended the recent "Scouting Northwest" activity, which encompassed cultural diversity and varied natural environment.

Sixty-four teen-age girl scouts from five states attended.

The first week was planned by teen-agers from the Seattle area, concentrating the adventure to the theme of "let's join hands to discover new worlds."

But Cathy said she enjoyed the second week, because they got out of the big cities and to Kalaloch Beach and Puget Sound camps. The later part of the project included more girl planning by the campers.

On a four-day Canadian jaunt to Vancouver and Victoria, British Columbia, she saw a bit of old England and got acquainted with Canadian Girl Guides.

She confessed to feeling strange among the Makah Indians until she became friends with one of the scouts from the reservation who was part of the group.

It is by meeting and traveling with people of different backgrounds that the Girl Scout program of today hopes to build understanding and appreciation of individual differences of girls with varied cultures, customs and modes of living, she said.

Block Parent Program in D.C.

Westlake School P-TA is setting up a "Block Parent" program, in cooperation with the Daly City Police Department.

Chairman Mrs. Michael Daw said she welcomes volunteers from the Westlake Estates, Westlake Unit One, and Unit Two between Park Plaza and Fairway Drive.

A "Block Parent" provides temporary shelter to a child needing help until a police officer can be called in to take charge.

All residents are eligible for the program whether or not they are parents themselves.

For further information please call Mrs. Daw (755-6721), Mrs. Theodore Miller (992-4115) or Westlake School (992-1000).

NELL NORTON Sugar 'n Spice

Good morning, good cooks.

Here we are in Phase III of our Christmas baking. This week's project will be quick breads. Besides being delicious and easy to make, these are attractive breads, with nuts, raisins, candied fruits, giving them flavor and color.

The first recipe is for a bread that could also be used as a cake for it's sweet, filled with nuts, raisins and gumdrops. Very festive looking.

GUMDROP BREAD

- 3 cups sifted flour
- ¾ cup sugar
- ¾ teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ cup chopped nuts
- ½ cup raisins
- 1 cup gumdrops, cut in small pieces, no licorice
- 1 egg, beaten
- 2 tablespoons melted shortening
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift together the three cups flour, three-fourths cup sugar, three and one-half teaspoons baking powder and one teaspoon salt. Stir in the half cup each nuts and raisins and the one cup cut-up gumdrops.

Blend together the one egg, two tablespoons melted shortening, one and one-half cups milk and one teaspoon vanilla. Add to dry ingredients and stir until dry ingredients are just moistened. Grease 9x5x3-inch loaf pan and flour lightly. Pour dough into pan bake in 350-degree oven 1 hour. Test with toothpick for doneness. Cool before slicing.

IT HAS BEEN my experience that any quick bread recipe that calls for three cups flour and a cup or more of fruit and nuts can be divided evenly into two small baking pans 8½x4½x2½-inches. This is a nice gift size bread. Available at most stores are packages of three aluminum pans in this size and they are reusable.

I believe that no collection of breads for Christmas would be complete without this next bread. My favorite, and the easiest to make.

CRAZY QUILT BREAD

- ½ cup sugar
- 3 cups biscuit mix
- 1 egg
- 1½ cups milk
- 1 teaspoon anise seeds
- ¾ cup nuts
- ½ cup mixed candied fruits

Preheat oven to 350-degrees. Grease 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. In mixing bowl combine the half cup sugar with three cups biscuit mix. Mix the one egg and one and one-fourth cups milk. Pour into dry ingredients. Beat vigorously for 30 seconds by hand. (The dough will look rather dry and lumpy but don't worry.) Blend in the one teaspoon anise seeds, one-half-cup candied fruit and three-fourths cup chopped nuts. Pour into prepared pan and bake in 350-degree oven 45 to 50 minutes. Smaller breads take less baking time; use toothpick to test for doneness. Let bread stand in pan on rack for 10 minutes then turn out to cool completely.

I FULLY INTENDED to concentrate on quick breads, but the mention of anise in this last recipe reminded me of the

Shark Band Push Begins At Oceana

Students of the Oceana Shark Band and their parents gathered in the music room at Oceana High School to officially begin the preparations for a parent-student organization to further the cause of instrumental music education at Oceana High and to give adequate support, both temporal and moral, to the Shark Band.

Band director Robert Shedd, explained to parents in attendance that the instrumental music program at Oceana High is rapidly expanding and that help in the way of chaperones, transportation, ideas for concerts, community activities, publicity, tours, and financial projects is needed very much if this growth is to be sustained.

Although adequate funds are budgeted for the maintenance of a good band program at Oceana, special projects such as the purchase of new uniforms, the addition of expensive percussion equipment, and addition of more low woodwind and brass instruments required the expenditure of large amounts of capital outlay at one time.

Also, with the size of the Shark Band ever increasing, tours and trips for the band will require the assistance of parents and families to help in providing transportation and adequate supervision for the many students who will be participating in these activities, Shedd said.

The first week in February selected Shark Band members will participate in the Pacific Music Clinic sponsored by the University of the Pacific in Stockton. At this clinic over 800 bandmen from all over northern California will converge in Stockton for one day of intense training and rehearsal of band music for a concert to be performed that same evening.

Shark Band members will be leaving Oceana High around 5:30 a.m. and not return until midnight that night. For such an all-day excursion, with bandmen spread all over the city, help is needed in keeping track of everyone and providing transportation and meals.

Parents were told by Shedd that band students this year had voted to turn into a band improvement fund all the proceeds from their concerts throughout this entire season. In years past these funds have been spent on socials, picnic parties, and band awards. Students decided to individually purchase these items now to save the band this extra expense. They also set a goal for themselves of each bandman selling $5 worth of tickets for every concert. Their parents commended them for their sacrifices and pledged that they will help them achieve this goal.

Exactly how the student-parent band organization is to be organized and how it is to function was not decided at this first meeting, but an ad hoc steering committee consisting of Mr. and Mrs. William Bernhardt, Mr. and Mrs. Paul O'Connell, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Abbott, Mrs. Marvin Dutton, and Mrs. Harold Mills, who will assist in organizational details, was formed and will meet over the holiday vacations to effect such an organizational structure and to inform bands parents of their ideas by a newsletter and to call a second meeting immediately after the first of the year for parental and student ratification of their ideas.

WHS Choral Units To Give Concert

The Girls Glee of Westmoor High School end a busy season of singing with their Christmas Concert Thursday in the Little Theater at 7:30 p.m.

This group has made appearances at the three area shopping centers: Stonestown, Serramonte and Westlake. They also took two assemblies to the Garden Village School and sang for the Westmoor Christmas rally.

Director Howard Loeffler has changed the format of this group to one which brightly entertains as a jazz choir, accompaniment for this group. Russ Gulob on rhythm guitar and Mark Spitaleri in bass guitar provide the unique accompaniment for this group.

Sandy McLennon, their student leader, leads the opening of each concert with a Hebrew chant which she taught them. Then their concerts continue with "Spinning Wheel," a sort of theme song for the group. Next they salute with "Chanuka Holiday," followed by traditional sacred and secular music of the Christmas season.

Along with the choral concert will be a twenty-minute presentation by the Comedy Troupe.

Pre-School Yule Party Is Planned

Several ESEA Jefferson High School junior class students from Room 222, under direction of teacher, Mrs. Judy Smith and teacher-aid, Mrs. Jan Ynestreza, will participate in a community-service class activity by giving a Christmas party for the pre-school children who are presently enrolled in the Daly City Head Start Program.

The party is on Thursday, and students are busy collecting new toys, making games and planning a menu for lunch preparation. The party will take place at the Head Start School.

Those participating in the project are as follows: Linda Arterburn, Judy Bergley, Carol Beardman, Mike Crewder, Jim Devlin, Sharon Devlin, Henry Giovannetti, Linda Gomez, Chris Gonzales, Sandra Great-house, Mike Hara, Roberta Harper, Jackie Hastings, Fred Jeong, Carol Johnson, Sharon Kroner, Rod Martinez, Georgeanna McCrum, Fred Periera, Larry Petersen, Liz Rosa, Margie Talavera, Maria Thomas, Carol Tiedjo and Ray Vasquez.

The ESEA program is federally funded by the Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

Tom Powell Homer Edgecomb

I think the first time I ever left the consuming aspect of culinary and went into the production end was at age 11, in the Boy Scouts, on a fishing trip, high in the Sierra, among 30 other boys, with the finest scoutmaster scouting has ever known — Homer Edgecomb.

Homer was a warm, dry man of about 45 with a keen but unsmiling sense of humor. He knew everything there was to know about the woods and wildlife, campfires and hatchets, first aid and the nature of young boys.

Homer knew that fishing was fun and he also knew that a little friendly competition would enhance the sport. So he offered prizes for the biggest fish caught, the most fish caught, and the best cooked fish.

Well, sure enough, Eddie Lawson caught the biggest fish. It weighed in at almost two pounds. Leonard Cook caught the most — seven crappies, two perch and a frog.

The cooking competition was won in a landslide by yours truly — primarily because I was the only one who entered.

With two quarts of oil and my official scout mess kit frying pan, I cooked a seven-ounce filleted perch until it lacked any semblance of an earthly thing. The outside was burnt beyond hope with the inside still raw. But I didn't know any better.

At last, Homer came over after judging the other competition and looked down at my smoking, smouldering fish.

"How're we doing?" he asked, his expression unchanging as he sized up the situation.

"Just fine Homer," I said, not knowing any better.

"Well, let's see how it tastes," he said kindly.

He reached down into that greasy mess and plucked a bit of fish and popped it into his mouth like he was sampling a sumptuous steak. He rolled the disgusting glob around a bit and swallowed a wonderful, diplomatic, knowing swallow — not at all like he was going to gag at any moment.

"Well, sir?" I pressed.

"It could use a little salt," Homer said.

My heart sang. A little salt. That's all it needed was a little salt!

Homer presented the prizes around the campfire that night. I got a bottle of reel oil, some fishing line and six machine-tied black fly lures. I still have most of it.

Like I said, Homer was the best guy scouting ever had. He could have made a face, he could have spat out that vile concoction — he could even have cancelled the cooking competition because the lone entry was so awful.

He could have turned a young boy off to a hobby that could give many hours of pleasure when he was older.

But he didn't. And for all I knew for seventeen years — until I just sat down to write this column — for all I knew, that fish just needed a little salt.

Who Suffers the Most?

I have received a request urging my support for a proposal that no mention of Christ be allowed in school plays and Christmas carols during the holiday season. What a horrible thought — not to sing carols and not to pay tribute to the Prince of Tolerance, or to repeat the ideal spoken by the angels who announced His birth: "Peace on earth; good will to men."

I wonder who will suffer the most — the people of the Judeo-Christian majority or those who prattle about their rights — when men cease to sing "Noel, Noel," which is an expression of joy and to sing and shout "God rest you, merry gentlemen for Christ was born this day."

I wonder whose child will suffer when a Christmas passes with no mention being made of the Great Teacher who said, "Let he who is without sin cast the first stone."

Tolerance is a two-way street requiring give and take on the part of all parties and all parts of society. Let no one forget that man, as Adam Smith observed, is a "creature with a propensity to truck, barter and exchange one thing (philosophy) for another." Tolerance thrives in the barter and in the exchange; in the examination of many philosophies not in law suits and judges rulings.

LONG AGO, TOLSTOY put words to the truth about tolerance. "Where could I have got it? By reason could I have arrived at knowing that I must love my neighbor and not oppress him? I was told that in my childhood, and I believed it gladly, for they told me what was already in my soul. But who discovered it? Not reason. Reason discovered the struggle for existence, and the law that requires us to oppress all who hinder the satisfaction of our desires. That is the deduction of reason. But loving ones neighbor reason could never discover, because it is irrational."

Building upon Tolstoy's comment Reverend James A. Pike, in his essay, "Which Way My Neighbor," charged that laws and lawsuits treat people as things rather than as people-neighbors.

He added a truth that some members of the ACLU should examine. "Many motives — and mixtures of motives — enter in . . . In short, people can do the same things — and the same good things — for a variety of reasons. Mere mortals can only judge the merits of the causes themselves."

Let him who would abolish the carols, the poetry and the plays examine the merits of his suggestion. Let him reflect that to remove from the school the carols, the Christmas poetry, the plays, the stories of the Christ-Child, removes one more beautiful thing from a society that is becoming very ugly.

IT SHOOTS another arrow into the body of the brotherhood of man which seems headed for an untimely death.

Let him understand Jesus through the eyes of thinkers of the stamp of Tolstoy and Bishop Pike. The passage cited above from Tolstoy is from the novel "Anna Karenina." That from Bishop Pike comes from his book, "Who Is My Neighbor."

Both are worth the time of the reader who consults them.

THE MARQUEE

By Barbara Bladen

Hurt the Image?

Does playing a 400 pound degenerate who smokes a marijuana cigarette while being loaded into a paddy wagon in a movie hurt the image of Irving Selbst, president of Pierre Cardin men's wear in the United States?

He doesn't really care. With earthy good humor, Selbst has a wise crack answer for everything, including his name of Big Jelly in MGM's "The Gang That Couldn't Shoot Straight."

"It helps advertise my two restaurants in New York, so I have it going all ways," the 44-year-old veteran of four films quipped.

"Do I love to eat? Look at me. I'm a snug size 52. Before lunch. Wanna hear an ego trip? My one restaurant at 64th and Second Street is called Sam's. This month I'm opening an elegant dilly on 63rd and Second called Irving's."

Selbst got into films when the producer of the George Segal film "Loving" called him to outfit the star in Cardin suits and jackets. He didn't elaborate the negotiations but both Cardin's styles and the company's president ended up in the film.

Then he played a next door bigot in "Watermelon Man" and an apartment house manager in "Born To Win." In the Jimmy Breslin best selling book whose film adaptation opens on the peninsula December 24, he plays an Italian hood.

"Lissen, I don't worry about not having an accent. I just fake it by speaking Brooklynese."

"I couldn't resist making this tour for the film. I give MGM half a day and Cardin the other half. San Francisco is a great Cardin market, especially for the young men's wear. They really buy the new look out here."

"All that talk about nostalgia gasses me. Our new look this Spring is pants with pleats. For anyone over 40, that's nostalgia. But the younger guys are buying it up like the latest fad. And we're bringing back the grey flannel suit in a new look."

The Cardin look is classic, like Coco Chanel for women. It features the rope shoulder which is narrow and very European, a higher armhole and shaped body.

"When a guy walks down the street in a Cardin jacket, people know it's Cardin. Naturally they're not made in large sizes, you lose too much styling when you open them up to size 52, which is what I wear. But he makes clothes for me because, well hell, I'm the president."

The line is designed in Paris by Cardin, who was Christian Dior's protege before he died. Selbst confers with the designer twice a year in Europe then brings back the sketches and manufactures the American line in New York.

"In Europe during the war, they lost a whole generation of men. Those guys over there are small and they wear clothes you can't breathe in."

D.C. Redevelopment Shouldn't Be a Surprise

By FRANK LAPIERRE

Redevelopment should not come as a surprise to residents of the eastern sector of Daly City, especially in the area of the Bay Area Rapid Transit station on Knowles Avenue.

The city's General Plan, adopted by the Planning Commission and City Council in 1968, devotes considerable space to redevelopment of the central city.

Last in Series

In defining urban renewal the plan explains there are two types of renewal programs: slum prevention through conservation and rehabilitation; and slum elimination through clearance and reconstruction.

Rather than completely sweep away an entire section of a city, experts in the field recommend only those structures in a dilapidated condition be destroyed, while other structures in a project area be rehabilitated to bring them up to current building code standards.

"Compared with other cities, Daly City does not have any slums. But in the central area there is significant incidence of deteriorating and dilapidated structures," the plan states.

This is a point city officials have attempted to drive home in their meetings with the public on the subject.

A 1967 housing condition survey in the eastern sector revealed these "spot conditions." There was no general slum area at that time, nor is there any such district in the city now.

City Manager David Rowe said he will better be able to evaluate the situation when the results of the proposed redevelopment study come in.

What will redevelopment do to those persons forced to relocate as a result of redevelopment — if in fact it comes to Daly City?

One of the "musts" provided for in the law is that a workable relocation program for displaced persons be included in the scheme, Rowe said.

And the law also requires that a person living in an affected area have first choice at financial participation in the project area redevelopment.

Some persons appearing before the city council have demanded they be allowed to get a "piece of the cake" if their areas are affected.

One San Francisco man who refused to give his address or his interest in the matter, said he wanted the city to keep "hands off" the selling and redevelopment and let the affected persons do their own "wheeling and dealing."

Daly City Mayor Bernard J. Lycett has said the city has been attempting to attract investors and developers in any future project, however there have been no takers to date.

Asked exactly how many persons had been approached by Daly City in its "selling program," Manager Rowe replied "40 or 50 have expressed varying degrees of interest."

New laws have raised the amount of money a person may receive if he has to relocate.

They could get up to $15,000 (it was $5,000) over the fair market value of their condemned home to relocate to a house of comparable stature.

The "new" house must, however, meet all city building codes. They may also get a "relocation allowance," plus other benefits for specified periods after they relocate.

A person moving into another home after being uprooted will probably not have to pay much more in property taxes, Rowe feels.

The City Manager said taxes in the BART station area, as an example, are currently "unfair."

With property values up in that area, homes are being over-assessed, county figures reveal.

"Their real hope is in tax relief legislation," Rowe said in referring to those persons on fixed incomes facing increasingly higher property taxes.

St. Louis is a good example of how redevelopment should be, according to Julius Castellani, long active in senior citizen and minority group affairs.

Castellani feels the people living in the affected area should have more than a weak voice in what happens to their area.

"Frankly, I'm against it and I will fight (redevelopment)," Castellani vowed. "I don't think our city should be torn down. There are too many low income families that will suffer."

Rowe disagrees with such statements regarding the poor who now own their homes and may have to relocate.

He said, "Daly City will have to include low income senior citizen housing (in its plan). Don't ask me where at this time pending outcome of the study."

The study should take three to four months and cost some $10,000.

After this phase of the program is complete the road to physical redevelopment or rehabilitation of homes is a lengthy process that may take more than a year.

All proposals of persons desiring to participate in the redevelopment project must be made in public, the law stipulates.

A person responsible in part for the creation of the Mission Street Merchants' Association and redevelopment of at least the "Old" business district of the city is Vince Merlo.

Merlo said he feels redevelopment "in certain areas" can be of help in "saving the older section of town."

But he is against the complete revamping of the east side for the sake of redevelopment.

"We need community participation, a flexible committee to assist the city," Merlo said. "I have mixed feelings about redevelopment at this time."

Without low income housing, open space, parks and other public facilities (which could be financed in whole or part by the federal government) the redevelopment agency of Daly City could be doomed to failure in its attempts to build a nicer place for all its citizens to live.

Unusual Live Shows

THE SHADOW KNOWS — About those unusual live shows being staged by a Daly City lodge. Our Source tells us that the Eagles have thus far had two performances right there in living color. Naughty, naughty. At last word, the local Boys in Blue, always on the lookout for things blue, ordered a former councilman who heads the organization to knock it off, or else.

IT'S BAD ENOUGH the city doesn't have bingo games, according to some city officials, now it doesn't even have stag shows.

DALY CITY HAD TO TAKE its commissioners out to dinner last week. Matter-of-fact, they took them all the way to South San Francisco for the annual commissioners' dinner. The spot was the new Southern Restaurant. Seems D.C. has a very limited number of available banquet rooms for 150 people. You can count them on one finger.

AT ONE POINT during the dinner a victim of the too-long pre-dinner cocktail hour quickly rose during a speech by Vice Mayor Frank Pacelli and, with handkerchief to mouth, rushed toward the door. A woman at the end of the table knowingly informed us "(blank)" is so emotional. Look, he's crying over Mr. Pacelli's speech." Funny way to cry, if you ask me.

D.C. MAYOR BUD LYCETT made it to the dinner after being confined to a Peninsula Hospital bed for a week with a kidney ailment. He's back in again with the same ailment.

BOB YOUNG RECEIVED a nice plaque on his retirement from the D.C. Personnel Board.

MIND BOGLER in the S.F. morning blah: A photo caption of an alleged bank robber told how the suspect robbed a Japanese Center bank of $650 and "despite the busy hour and his furtive glances, the robber's activities went unnoticed by customers AND EMPLOYEES." Dear Friends, I firmly believe that at least ONE employee knew he was in that bank — the one he supposedly robbed.

WE WOULD ME REMISS if we didn't hastily add right here that those D.C. Commissioners receive NO PAY FOR THEIR TIME spent in city activities. The dinner is their only compensation. And they do a heckuva job, too!

MEANWHILE, IN THE QUIET Town of Colma things have been happening. The representative government of that city, under the guidance of beloved Mayor Raymond Ottoboni, last week appointed the mayor's son as Chief of Police.

Ottoboni, a 30-year-old former postman, councilman, assistant to the Chief Dini Lagomarsino, has been wearing a chief's badge since last month. The council (or at least four members of the council) felt young Ottoboni should wear the badge, inasmuch as it was ordered the day after Chief Lagomarsino's death.

OH, THERE WAS SOME criticism of the appointment from the small audience attending the meeting, and from Councilwoman Rena Vallera, but nothing as compared to the public outcry several months ago when townspeople flocked to the City Hall to protest such an appointment.

It was a simple matter to outwait this public outburst and let cooler heads prevail. Cooler heads prevailed last week.

Now the town has a new, experienced chief to protect them from crime. Vox Populi.

AN ASIDEM TO COLMA — It was suggested the council rearrange the seating so they face the audience. This would be an excellent idea and would prevent some folks from talking behind their backs, so to speak. It might be another good idea to make available an agenda of what the council will discuss along with an allotted time open for public appearances.

NEW PLANNING COMMISSIONER over in Colma: Emil Kruljac, of the Serbian Cemetery.

THE D.C. WELFARE RIGHTS Organization, a non-profit group composed of welfare recipients and persons concerned with problems of low income persons needs your help this Christmas season. Call Leola White at 992-9414 for info.

AND SPEAKING OF CHRISTMAS and charitable events, let me say most strongly that never have I been so disappointed in my fellow man than I have been this season. In a nutshell: The response to appeals made by the D.C. Operation Santa Claus Committee has been lousy. Citizens and merchants alike have closed their hearts, minds and pocketbooks to these pleas to help make this Christmas a little brighter for the poor.

One quick walk around ANY shopping center and it can be quickly determined that there has been no slack in business.

It looks like merchants are heading for a record sales year. Citizens can't be hurting too bad either, judging from the money they are spending. One turkey, a few cans of food, a single dollar, a small toy.

This is too much to ask at this time of year — a time when we are supposed to be celebrating the birthday of a boy that gave His very LIFE for all of us!!! Loosen up a little!

The Money Problem Has Two Parts

By RUSSELL CUNNINGHAM
San Bruno Police Chief

The F.B.I. reports that during the month of October, 1971, 11 law enforcement officers were killed due to felonious criminal action. This is compared to nine killed during the same month in 1970.

During the first 10 months of 1971, 102 local, county and state law enforcement officers were murdered as compared with a total of 85 officers slain during the same period in 1970.

By geographical region, 39 officers were slain in southern states, 22 in north central states, 21 in northeastern states, 20 in western states. 16 officers died as a result of ambush type attacks, 23 were killed responding to robbery and burglary calls, 14 as the result of traffic stops and the remainder during the performance of other types of police duties.

It is most interesting to note that 96 percent of officer killings in 1971 were committed with firearms. Hand guns were used in 73 percent of the slayings.

The point is that people, police officers, are being killed by instruments that are mainly used for killing. These instruments serve no other major useful purpose. Proponents of stricter firearms control face strong opposition from big lobby groups who purport that "when guns are outlawed, only outlaws will have guns."

What about the 10,276 murders that were committed during 1970 by use of guns. Guns were used in 65 percent of murders in 1970.

Did you know that 60 percent of the 348,380 robberies, not burglaries, committed in 1970 were accomplished by means of a gun?

Would it be a beautiful world if the gun were never invented?

Our Number

It is not generally recognized that the political money problem has two parts: first, the manner in which money is gathered, and second, the way in which it is spent. Each part, standing by itself tends to weaken representative government. Taken together, their deleterious effect is magnified.

True enough, the present system admits of the possibilities of corruption and influence peddling, and these dangers alone demand reform. But even assuming that no official has crossed the line (and history tells us that this assumption is not justified), the matter of donations and access to public officials is central to the money problem.

Practical politicians have long recognized the value of proximity to important figures. For only by communication of ideas and opinions can they hope to affect the judgment of those conducting governmental affairs. This awareness explains the crush about really powerful men and the competitive spirit of members of a palace guard to be near "the man."

So compare the influence of a voter with that of a substantial donor. The balance is so unequal that it seems unreasonable to try to weigh the difference. Only by banding together with hundreds of thousands of siblings can the voter compete. He can exercise his voice at election time, and then, for him, the game is over until the next election. The big giver, on the other hand, can be and often is involved in constant communications. He attends luncheons, dinners, conferences. His letters are read, and his phone calls accepted.

The courts have recently given some attention to the subject of access. Far removed from the topic of political money, they have recognized the importance of this concept in establishing the manner in which the one man one vote rule is to be applied. Both the United States Supreme Court and the California Supreme Court have spoken to the point. In a recent case, Justice Raymond Sullivan of the California Court said: "Crucial" though voting is as a method of participation in representative government, access to public officials is also an important means of democratic expressions . . .

We witness a strange polarization of political rights. As the right to vote has become more and more universal and protected, the right of access has drifted away from the people. Fed into the nation's voting machines, the wishes of the multitude are periodically counted. But access, unfortunately, has tended to become the private preserve of the wealthy.

Now all this doesn't mean that only men of means have continuing influence. Such an argument is patently untenable. But it does support the proposition that a wealthy person who chooses to give money to campaigns has a better chance to affect the course of government. In a word, the right of access is not equal.

Confronted with this dichotomy, the average voter senses his lack of power. Exhorted to register, to vote, and to continue to participate in the off

The Minibike Gift

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) urges parents who are planning to give their child the popular minibike for Christmas to see that the following safety rules are enforced.

Restrict the use of the minibike to private property. The NHTSA opposes all use of minibikes on sidewalks or streets because there is too great a danger of collision with cars on roads and highways and with pedestrians on sidewalks.

Provide your child with a good strong helmet and make it a mandatory riding equipment at all times. A federal standard for all protective headgear is being prepared by NHTSA because of the increasing number of reports concerning fragile helmets that shatter on impact. See that sturdy clothing and shoes are worn to help protect against possible injuries from falls.

It is estimated that 1.5 million minibikes will be in use by the end of 1971, almost all operated by children between ages 10 to 14 years of age. At present the NHTSA says it has no authority to regulate vehicles that are intended solely for off-road use. The minibike problem therefore is the great responsibility of parents in preventing death and serious injuries for thousands of American youngsters and a matter for state regulation and enforcement.

The following characteristics that make the small, two-wheeled, usually unlicensed minibike for roadway use:

Poor handling characteristics exist because of short wheelbase and small tires.

Engines fail to provide acceleration and speed capabilities suitable to the highway.

Brakes are often inadequate.

Minibikes are difficult to spot by drivers of other vehicles because of the minibikes small size.

'Silver Fox' Wins

They beat you with such class and finesse it's almost a pleasure.

But not quite. Skyline Junior College couldn't muster many smiles after dropping a 67-45 decision to precision-oriented City College of San Francisco Wednesday in the city and the bad part is that the Trojans must face equally tough Foothill Junior College tomorrow evening on the road.

They kiddingly call him 'The Silver Fox.' But to John Sidney Phelan, a basketball coach by occupation and a perfectionist by nature, the game is no kidding matter. A driving taskmaster who stresses the finer points of the game, Phelan has gained wide fame as the master of defense and the percentage offense — the opportunity shot.

And that's exactly what the CCSF Rams did last week: They closed off the middle to the Trojans and were darn stingy allowing any other area to be free for Trojan buckets. No one Skyline player scored or really even came close to double figures as the Rams completely dominated the rebounding statistics at both ends of the court.

"To say the least I was disappointed in our offense," said Trojan mentor Walt Rilliet. "I'm just dumbfounded as to what happened out there. There's no one really to blame individually. We just couldn't get an offense generated."

One time early in the game the Trojans had a shot at the lead. After trailing 15-6 Skyline made a brief run at the Rams and closed to within one at 15-14 as CCSF went ice cold. The Rams were due for that cool spell as they had hit seven of their first eight floor shots.

But talk about cool! The Trojans then went the next six minutes without scoring, CCSF built back up a 12-point lead and it really was all over after that. Unfortunately for Skyline, it ran into another cold spell in the second half. This time the Trojans closed to within seven, 38-31 only to go the next eight minutes without a field goal as the CCSF defense just clamped down.

It was during that cold spell that Robert Taylor, who local prep fans will remember from two years back as the Washington High School midget scoring and passing whiz, put on quite a show. He hit 10 of his 12 points on a variety of lay-ins and jumpers that had Skyline defenders defenseless.

"Offensively we didn't do a very good job and our defense was just adequate," said Phelan after the game. "We are in a very tough conference and there are at least three teams better than we are. Merritt Junior College has to be a heavy favorite to win the title."

But don't count out Sid and the boys. They are tough.

'Subs' Win For Skyline Hoopsters

Several Skyline College basketball players who had failed to stop the City College of San Francisco machine Wednesday night opened Friday night's game with Foothill on the bench.

Somewhat predictably, the Golden Gate Conference Owls jumped out to a 5-0 lead and increased it to 16-4 with 11:30 remaining in the first half.

Rilliet went to the bench, his "subs" came in, and Foothill immediately ceased to do much of anything at all.

Guards Mike Larios and Matt Kriethich put some teeth in a full court press, and the Trojans made their first extensive use of a zone defense this year.

Everything worked. During the next six minutes and twenty-nine seconds Skyline ripped off 16 points to Foothill's zero — Kriethich got nine of them, Larios seven and 6-8 center Paul Reynolds, another bench-riper, came in to dominate the boards.

By halftime Skyline led 32-21. But Foothill came out charging in the third quarter: Skyline had reverted to a man-for-man, and the Owls canned three quick buckets to close the margin to 32-27.

One short time-out later, Rilliet's lads were back in a zone and Foothill was back in the doldrums. For the next seven minutes Foothill came up with another zero: Skyline was popping through 15.

With eight minutes left in the game, Skyline had pulled away to a 51-31 lead; after that, it was just a matter of trading baskets.

"Some of the kids felt they hadn't played their best against San Francisco," Rilliet said afterward. "CCSF's a fine team, but the boys thought they could do better... so tonight made them feel pretty good. We've been waiting all along for our sophomores to put it together; tonight, they did."

BICYCLE and horse trails will be built along the west side of the new Devil's Slide bypass right of way, it has been announced. New state legislation allows this and this is the first application in the state. The bypass is shown on the map in heavy lines and the present alignment in the broken line. The trails would run from the foot of Cedar Street in Montara (end of the spur line shown north of Montara interchange) on the south to the south end of Linda Mar in Pacifica on the north.

Bike, Horse Trails Set For Devil's Slide Route

The first bicycle and horse trail to be built along a state freeway will be incorporated into the design of the new Devil's Slide bypass, tentatively scheduled for opening in 1975.

The bypass now is planned for four lanes. The bicycle and horse trails would run from the foot of Cedar Street in Montara on the south to the south end of Linda Mar in Pacifica on the north.

The bicycle trail is a new concept and is the first application under a state law from a bill signed just last month by the governor. The original legislation was from State Senator Arlen F. Gregorio (D-San Mateo).

A Coastside citizens' campaign for the trails was spearheaded by the Bike and Hike Committee of the Half Moon Bay Chapter of American Association of University Women; Ron Michel-

The Tall Men Still Have an Advantage

Some people feel there is room for the little man in basketball yet, but El Camino High School found out Wednesday five big men still have the advantage over five smaller ones.

The Colts, seeing action for the first time in 1971, fell prey to the taller Mills High School Vikings, 48-42, who got their third win in four games.

Offensive rebounding and defensive rebounding, both traits of the taller squad, were the differences for Mills. Juniors Don Weaver, who scored 22 points, and center Ken MacKenzie, who didn't score much but was invaluable on the boards, came through in the second half after a slow-motion first two periods that saw the Colts trail by two points.

Camino, which plays strong man-to-man defense but has difficulty putting the ball in the hoop, slowed down the game's tempo but gave the Vikings the lead with several damaging turnovers.

Camino didn't have a field goal in the second quarter until Mark Spivey put in a lay-in with 46 seconds left in the half. Mills

Oceana Wins

A captain usually goes down with his ship, but San Carlos coach Dan Silva abandoned it. As a result, the Dons were reduced to nothing more than Shark bait Wednesday afternoon.

Silva switched defenses as often as Tom Landry does quarterbacks and piloted the Dons to a first half 19-15 lead over the host Oceana Sharks.

But he dropped the masquerade and went with a man-to-man defense in the second half, opening the way for a come-from-behind Oceana victory, 52-45.

Using everything but a safety blitz, the Dons completely stymied the Oceana effort for two quarters. The Sharks were confused and worried into making but six of 24 from the floor during that time.

It was a more confident Oceana five that found the Don defense leaky and pliable in the second half. Combining for 24 of Oceana's 37 point second half production, Tom Harper and Terry Johnston led the Sharks to a 38-32 edge, one they never lost.

The Sharks' hopped-up offense ripped the Dons for 65 per cent shooting clip in the second half, finding decisive room under the boards.

Size Wins for Jefferson

By JERRY LITRELL
Aside from a 20-game winning streak what is a high school basketball coach's greatest thrill in life?

A lifetime subscription to Cage Coach Magazine? A set of glass backboards? Four free passes to a grammar school all-star game? How about a 6-4 court. Kelly showed him the way. Norman took it from there.

And in a double-overtime victory over highly touted and previously undefeated Placer High School, Norman found his way to the basket by himself enough times to register 14 points playing just half the game. And, al-junior transfer who is your leading scorer in the first game he plays for your school? (Hint—Favor the last answer.)

Jefferson High School coach Mic Kelly, already well-endowed with 6-6 center Ken Smith (who is listed at 6-4 but hasn't seen that height since he was a soph), looked up, literally, a couple weeks ago and saw transfer student Harold Norman walk into his office asking directions to the basketball though he wasn't in there in the two extra periods, his presence was already felt when the Indians outscored the Hillmen, 16-8, in the third period that brought the Jeff quintet to as much as an 11-point lead.

Jeff, which had lost to St. Ignatius by blowing a six-point lead in the fourth period, almost did the same thing Saturday night. The Indians had Placer down by six with three minutes to go but guard Alton Caesar, a multi-talented and poised performer, brought the Hillmen back from the brink of defeat as he hit a free throw, a 10-foot baseline jumper and stole a Jeff pass with 14 seconds left in regulation play that led to the 49th and tying point.

A tip-in by Neville Wall and a layin by Marty Evers were the only points scored in the first overtime and the same two players exchanged buckets again to open the second OT. Then Gary Lindsey stole a Placer pass and put through a layin but Evers again came through, this time with an 18-footer to tie it at 55-all with 50 seconds left.

Joe Randolph came through with two clutch bonus free throws with 10 seconds left to win the game for Jeff as Placer's last second shot fell harmlessly off the backboard.

In the other half of the doubleheader St. Ignatius used phenomenal accuracy at the free throw line to down mistake-prone Westmoor, 68-51. Westmoor, which now has an 0-2 record, committed 27 turnovers of a costly variety and could never generate any sort of consistency on offense. Naturally.

The Wildcats, voted the doubleheader's Most Outstanding Team award, hit 26 of 30 free throws. Westmoor only missed four charity shots but had only 13 attempts.

The Rams had trouble passing the ball to one another, especially on fast breaks off steals, and that mistake alone probably cost them at least a dozen buckets.

The doubleheader did show that Westmoor will be a team capable of staying with anyone, once the guard problems are solved, and Jefferson could be one of the more explosive and physical teams in the area. Love those transfers.

Indians Learn a Late Lesson

Jefferson High School learned a lesson Friday, but it came just a little too late to salvage the Indians in their 1971 basketball opener.

The Indians dropped a thrilling 51-49 decision to the well-disciplined St. Ignatius Wildcats in the second half of a doubleheader in Daly City. The first game saw a potentially great prep team, Placer High, smash Westmoor High School in the Rams' opener, 87-52.

For the full 32 minutes no more than five points separated the Indians and the Wildcats as Jeff forward Neville Wall and Wildcat guard Jim Feeney carried the brunt of their teams' attacks. The mere presence of 6-5 center Ken Smith stopped the St. Ignatius inside game completely as the Wildcats went entirely to a two-pronged attack — stealing in-bound passes for lay-ins and shooting from the perimeter.

Jeff, meanwhile, was suffering through first-game errors in ballhandling and shooting. The Indians weren't able to get the ball in to Smith on offense with any regularity for three-plus quarters, but when the chips were down in the late going the powerful center showed why he will probably be the top scorer on the Peninsula this year.

Trailing by four, 43-39, Jeff seriously went to Smith. Four times the pass got in to him at a low point and just as quickly he had eight more points. His last lay-in, with just two and one-half minutes left, gave the Indians a 49-44 lead. But St. Ignatius came coolly back with seven straight points, Jeff was unable to muster its forces for that last second surge and the Wildcats won.

After Vic Escamado's free throw cut the margin to four, Paul Baldocchi hit another charity shot and Fenney followed with a 10-footer off a Jeff turnover. Baldocchi became the hero when he stole another Jeff pass and raced in for a lay-in to make it 50-49. St. Ignatius, with just 19 seconds remaining.

Jeff frantically tried to get the ball to Smith but he was fouled on the pass in to a low post. Smith missed the first of a bonus situation and St. Ignatius got the rebound. After a desperation foul Baldocchi hit the final free throw with just two seconds left.

Slick Book Culls

Couple of years ago the NFL published one of those big, showy, expensive and very slick books that usually come out around Christmas time, the better to offer as Yuletide gifts for father and son.

It was called "The First 50 Years," and oddly enough, it turned out to be a good book and not just another Pete Rozelle PR coup. We still cull things from it occasionally, and so our most recent cull:

The editors had a good and practical idea. They didn't, as is the wont of most editors of such gift-book types, name just A all-time all-pro team. They named a team for each decade. Which, in the ever-changing world of sport, is about the only equitable way to choose ANY kind of all-time team. But we digress.

In studying the teams we couldn't help but notice the general disparity in sizes between the greats of the "then" and the greats of now. So we whipped out our magic mental computer and came up with the following height and weight averages for the book's all-time teams for each decade.

Note that for the '20's through '40s there is no acknowledged difference between offense and defense — just "backfield" and "line."

When two platooning began coming in strongly in the '50s, the editors differentiated between offense and defense:

1920s	1930s	1940s
Line—6-1 1/4-219	Line—6-1 1/4-217	Line—6-2-221
Backs—6-0 1/2-189	Backs—6-0 1-197	Backs—6-0-205
Offensive Line—6-2 3/4-225	Offensive Backs—6-1 1/4-204	Offensive Backs—6-1 1/4-208
Defensive—6-3 3/4-249	Defensive Backs—5-11-190	Defensive Backs—5-11-190

NEWS ITEM: Dandy Don Meredith has received an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from Alfred University.

Our correspondent in charge of erudition Lamarr Buq-Buq (Angelized, Buk-Buk), informs us that at the present time the university contains a liberal arts college, two professional schools, namely, the State University College of Ceramics and the School of Nursing, and a graduate school. Among degrees awarded are a B.S. in ceramic engineering, ceramic technology, glass technology, and nursing. Lamaar further informs us that the university is especially well known for instruction in the technology of ceramics.

Now, our question to Dandy Don: Is his doctorate in ceramics or nursing?

Be we dawdle. What we really wanted to say about Dandy Don is that it is he who holds the NVL record for most fumbles in a season (1964), with 16.

Which means that Howard Cosell and Barry Tompkins both shattered his mark at about mid-season. We wonder if the NFL record book discriminates between manual and verbal fumbles.

SUDDEN THOUGHT: We don't know about you, but "instant" replay seems to make the entire game last longer.

WE WERE DELIGHTED to read a combined UP-AP account of how New England quarterback Jim Plunkett upset the Miami Dolphins by "ignoring establishment of a running game," and immediately just passing the hell out of the ball.

It always has been our contention that the only kind of team which needs to establish a running game is one that has a running game, or, conversely, one which does not have a passing game. But, it seems to us, a team with a passing game is wasting valuable time establishing a running game. For what? To balance the statistics? Make the running backs feel wanted? Make the quarterback feel humility?

Oh, we know all the stock answers offered by the experts. But we deny them as part of our continuing effort to once again make football what it was designed to be — a simple game played by tough and fearless men. Not technological warfare overseen by geniuses.

For a team that can pass to establish a running game, is as (Please See Page 21)

Black Knights Still Lead Coast League

The Adult Basketball League sponsored by the Parks, Beaches and Recreation Department finished the seventh week of league play, with the Black Knights leading the league with a 7-0 record.

Sandy Beall and Tom McVey scored 14 points apiece and teammate Bill Drew popped for 13 points, as the Moonraker rolled to victory number "6" by crushing past Dial Glass 74-55. Gary Labelle was the high scorer in the game with 18 points for Dial Glass.

The Black Knights kept right on moving as they bypassed the French Club, 67-57. The Black Knights' offense was led by the fine shooting of Mac Smith with 24 points, while teammates Wilber Smith and Jim Choice hit for 15 each. Gene Donnelly paced the French Club in a losing effort with 23 points.

Kerri's kept pace with the Black Knights and Moonraker by demolishing the cellar-bound Rochesterers, 80-49. "Big" Dave Lee and Dick Drake hit for 34 and 18 points, respectively, in the victory. Rich Gaines popped for 16 points in the loss for the French Club.

Rob Silver Leads Cap to Triumph

Coach Jim Johnson and his Capuchino High Mustangs have already found their key to cage success—let Rob Silver do his thing.

Silver has a knack for scoring in nice double figures, say, 35 points.

Wednesday in the first round of the Rioridan Tournament that's what he rolled up—for the second time in the young season.

Wednesday Action

son. The spree pushed the Mustangs to a 70-68 win over the host Crusaders, and a potential tourney title shot.

The other Peninsula representative didn't fare so well; sluggish South San Francisco got punished by Wilson of the City 62-43.

Silver unselfishly contributed half his team's points; everybody else chipped in with just enough to keep Rob's hand from overheating.

Rioridan did make things uncomfortable for Johnson's "Tang" gang, though. The Crusaders spurted to a six-point lead midway through the final stanza.

But aided by some key scoring from guards Mike Galvin and Pete Santora, Silver brought his team the lead once again.

With 30 seconds to go, Rioridan tied it on a free throw. What would Cap do? What else? Silver took a pass at the top of the circle, dribbled once and fired. The ball ripped through the net with three seconds to go, and that was it.

South City was beaten at its own game—running. The Warriors grabbed the lead at the end of the first quarter, but after that, forget it, although Marty Galf did tally 13 points for the night.

Wilson did everything right and the Warriors did just about everything wrong. At one point in the second quarter S.S.F. was outscored 20-4. It was that kind of night.

S.S.F. Coach Gene Mullin shuffled and reshuffled every available body on his bench in hopes for something positive, but with no success. The Warriors were simply unable to handle the quicker and more aggressive Wilson cagers, which is something of a switch.

Usually that's what South City does to everyone else.

the tourney, is eliminated from further play along with Lincoln. SSF blew a four-point lead and established a dubious milestone.

The seesaw Capuchino battle almost began as a rout as the Warriors ran and pressed themselves into as much as a 10-point lead.

But the Warriors lost the tempo of the game in the second half; Capuchino began chipping away behind Rob Silver and Steve Turner and it turned into a scrappy affair.

Turner's two free throws with 59 seconds remaining brought Cap to within one, 49-48.

wasteful as a team that can run to establish a passing game. At least that's the way they look at it in Oklahoma.

ON THE SUBJECT of pro passing: While we don't deny that Don Hutson was ONE of the greatest pro pass receivers who ever lived — he still holds most of the important career reception records, which is a pretty good argument — we can't agree with those who venerate him as a man who established all those records in an era when the pass wasn't so prevalent. The fact is, that while passing may not have been prevalent in pro football in general in those days, Hutson's old coach Curly Lambeau, ordered an offense that passed about 75 per cent of the time.

And we can't quarrel with that Curly had a passing team, so he passed. He sure as hell didn't establish a running game. He won, too.

MORE SUDDEN THOUGHTS: One factor we forgot to mention in our analysis of the Gaylor Perry-Sam McDowell trade is the fact that McDowell is the spectacular type, a man who might strike out 17 or 18 one day and draw an extra 10,000 fans the next time he starts on the strength of that previous performance.

He is, in other words, the same type of pitcher as Vida Blue. When Blue's fast ball is mentioned, as a matter of fact, it is McDowell's swift one with which they always compare Blue's swift one.

Don't think that this kind of comment flies over Horace Stoneham's head. He might just have traded for Sam not only as a man who has the potential for 25-30 wins, but as one who can draw people, maybe even draw some of them away from Charley Finley. Sam may be on the payroll as a Blue-fighter.

Have you gotten the idea that the worst thing the Warriors can do is beat Milwaukee?

IN KEEPING WITH THE COUNTRY'S new nostalgic kick, following is a statistical comparison of NBA statistics in 1946 with NBA stats in 1970:

Highest Team Scoring Average: 1946, Chicago, 77.0; 1970, Philadelphia, 121.9.
Highest Field Goal Pct.: 1946, Washington, Chicago, 29.7; 1970 Milwaukee, 48.8.
Highest Free Throw Pct.: 1946, Washington, 70.6; 1970, Boston, 78.6.

Leading Scorer: 1946, Joe Fulks, Philadelphia, 23.2 (the only player with an average over 20 — next closest, Bob Perick, 16.3; 1970 Jerry West, 31.2).

Field Goal Pct. Leader: 1946, Feerick, Washington, 40.1; 1970, Johnny Green, Cincinnati, 55.9.

Free Throw Pct. Leader: 1946, Fred Scolari, Washington, 81.1; 1970, Flynn Robinson, Milwaukee, 89.8.

Leader in Assist. Avg.: 1946, Ernie Calverley, Providence, 3.4; 1970, Lenny Wilkins, Seattle, 9.1.

TAG END: One of our loyal readers wants to know where the term "english," in relation to sports, originated. Naturally, we don't know. If anybody out there does — or at last has a theory — let us know. We'll print it.

Falcons Rompin Redwood Tourney

The Crestmoor High basketball team took a little trip up to Healdsburg (outside of Santa Rosa) over the weekend to participate in the twenty-third annual Redwood Empire Invitational Tournament, and apparently found things quite to their liking.

The Falcons won two of three games to finish third in the eight-team show, and had three players attain individual honors as well. Junior forward Mark Rosekind was selected first team All-Tourney, while teammates Bill Shaughnessy and Jim Jarvis made the second team.

Crestmoor took the first game over Willits, 57-45, behind the strong scoring of Jarvis and guard George Ama, who scored 13 points apiece. The win was especially impressive, considering Willits had a 21-4 record last year and all of their starters back. The Falcons took control of the game with 15-9 third quarter scoring binge, and were able to coast in from there.

In the next game Crestmoor ran into eventual tourney champ Oakland Tech and MVP Leonard Williams, and dropped a 67-50 decision.

Despite going against a front line that went 6-8, 6-9, 6-8, the Falcons grabbed an early first quarter lead at 13-10, but the height disadvantage finally took hold and Tech took a three point lead at the half.

Crestmoor fell ten of the pace at the end of three quarters, and could never really make a serious run after that. The Falcons did close to within eight at 58-50 with two minutes to go, but a flurry of Tech free-throws hiked the final margin back up to 17. Jarvis once again hit 13 to lead the Falcons.

The third game was a breeze, as Crestmoor manhandled host Healdsburg, 86-41. The Falcons shot off to a quick 25-6 first quarter lead and had no trouble afterwards. Shaughnessy hit 19 to take game honors while guard Bruce Patterson contributed 14.

Crestmoor Coach Pete Pontacq was pleased with his teams' performance. "I thought we showed an excellent development through each game. We played some pretty good ball in all three, and I was especially pleased with the defense. That's the one thing we have to do well this year to win."

The Falcons are now 3-2 on the season.

Camino Tourney

San Mateo County's best compact showcase for prep basketball talent, the El Camino High School Invitational, gets under way today at 7 p.m. and continues through Saturday.

The eight-team, four-day extravaganza will have many of the top high school cage teams around and the opening round matchups could prove to be most exciting.

In the opening encounter Mills, 3-1, and one of the tallest teams around, takes on small but well-disciplined St. Ignatius. In the nightcap host El Camino will be looking for its first-ever win in the opening round of its own tournament when the Colts battle San Mateo's Bearcats at 8:30 p.m.

Thursday night tall Ramapais takes on veteran-studded Oceana in the 7 p.m. game followed by Rioridan's Crusaders against powerful Jefferson High School at 8:30 p.m.

Friday and Saturday games will be at 3:30, 5, 7 and 8:30 p.m.

SI was voted the Most Outstanding Team in last week's Jefferson doubleheader as the Wildcats won both nights to stretch their record to 5-1. Small everywhere, SI nevertheless does well with what talent it has as coach Bob Drucker has molded a control-discipline-offense revolving around Jim Feeney, one of the better outside shooters around.

Mills, meanwhile, has all sorts of height up front starting with juniors Don Weaver and Tom MacKenzie. Mills' sixth man is only 6-4, 215-pound Chuck Hextrum so it should be interesting to see how well the Wildcats can out-position the Vikings, which seems to be their only chance.

Camino, frustrated for the past six years, received bad news this week when starting forward Bob Marty showed up with a broken right hand from a collision in the Camino-Mills game last week. He will be out for a month and as he is one of the few Colts who can shoot with authority from the outside his loss should be felt.

San Mateo has a lot of 6-0 and 6-1 players but lacks that one big man to tell the offensive and defensive rebounding. Still, now with Serra transfer Steve Viehweg eligible, the Bearcats can be a tough outside shooting team and could sustain Camino's frustration.

Driver, 42, Badly Hurt, Faces Charges

A 42-year-old Turlock man, listed in critical condition at Choche Community Hospital, also faces felony hit-run and drunken driving charges as the result of an accident in South San Francisco Sunday.

Police said Rosalio Garcia Fletes was involved in a two-car collision at Grand and Maple Avenues at about 8:25 p.m.

A passenger in Fletes' car also was injured severely. Ricardo Gomez, 32, of 574 Railroad Avenue, South San Francisco was taken to Kaiser Hospital, San Francisco.

According to police, the car driven by Fletes hit a car driven by Norman Gerald Laurin, 25, of 214 Maple Avenue, South San Francisco, broadside. Laurin told police he would seek his own medical aid.

Police said Fletes was driving east on Grand Avenue. Laurin was southbound on Maple. According to police, Fletes apparently failed to stop at a signal light, hitting the Laurin vehicle and propelling it to the southeast corner of the intersection.

Police said the Fletes vehicle then proceeded south on Maple, crossing the Baden Avenue intersection and knocking over a street sign before crashing into a brick wall at Baden and Maple.

Fletes was taken initially to Kaiser Hospital, South San Francisco, transferred to Peninsula Hospital, Burlingame, then to Choche.

Authorities said he suffered facial and head injuries and possible internal injuries, as did his passenger.

Police said they will refer the matter to the district attorney's office for possible charges of felony hit-run and drunk driving.

New Summer Classes Set In Millbrae

The Millbrae School District will again offer summer classes this year, it was decided at December 6 meeting of the Board of Education. The meeting was held at Green Hills School, with Remo Boragno presiding.

Summer school will be held from June 26 through July 28, according to Dr. Edward J. Muehlhausen, superintendent. In addition to math, reading and other academic subjects, there will be an outdoor education program which includes a week at camp.

Detailed planning of summer school programs is now under way, and parents will soon receive information on course offerings and registration.

Board members changed the date of their scheduled December 30 session to December 17, at 7:45 a.m., at which time they will consider the district's financial statement and the payment of warrants.

They recognized the Millbrae Education Association as the organization to represent the certificated personnel in the district. Seven teachers were recognized as members of the Certificated Employees Council. Also recognized was the Millbrae Chapter of the California School Employees Association, to which 75 classified district employees belong.

Approved building modifications and improvements include the replacement of four doors and the rebuilding of a fence and gate installation at Green Hills School, at a cost of $296; purchase of a dozen outdoor tables and benches for Lomita Park School at $1,599; installation of stage drapes at Meadows School for about $900, and material to construct two handball courts at $275; carpeting and other work at Spring Valley School at a cost of $2,450; improvements to the mechanical drawing room at Taylor Intermediate School at a cost of $948, and work on the Arts & Crafts Building, at cost $845. At Chadbourne School, approval was given for the removal of an unsafe chain link fence, and its replacement, at cost $2,435.

During the personnel session, employment of Mrs. Alberta McCrory as an instructional aide was approved, as were leaves for Mrs. Patricia Putkey and Mrs. Margaret Barber.

John S. Root, of San Bruno, has been appointed Assistant Manager of the California Beef Council, Redwood City. Root will be in charge of publicity and publications in addition to coordinating various promotional and research programs for the Council.

S.S.F. Delays Vote On Police Station

South San Francisco councilmen again balked at making a decision on an architect to build a new police building. They put it off until the next meeting.

No decision was made because Councilman Frank Mammini was absent from the meeting and Councilmen Frank Bertucelli said he thought there ought to be a full council for such a decision.

Bertucelli also stressed that he favored the hiring of a local architect. One outside the city has been recommended by the city manager and police chief.

Councilman Warren Steinkamp said he favored the recommendation by the staff and said "It seems to me we're turning our wheels and wasting time."

Siding with Bertucelli was Councilman Ahern. His remarks prompted Mayor William Borba to say it would be advisable to go outside the city so as not to have to worry about political involvement.

Turning to Ahern, he said, "You have several (choices) here that could be political involvement."

Mammini at a previous session indicated that he favored a local architect.

$3,870 Bid For Office

The low bid of $3,870 by Albert Martin has been accepted by South San Francisco councilmen for construction of an equipment maintenance supervisor's office. The engineer's estimate was $2,800. One other bid, of $4,149, was submitted by Joseph Ragni and Sons, Inc.

2 Arrested At Airport For Burglary

Two New York City men were arrested at the San Francisco International Airport shortly before noon December 7 — one wearing priest's clothing that had been stolen in a New York City burglary of the priest's apartment.

Deputy Gene Masini reported he was alerted by William D. Byrne, 39, of Pacifica, a United Airlines supervisor, that two men were aboard United's Flight No. 23 from John F. Kennedy International airport with tickets purchased on a credit card stolen from a New York City priest.

The two men—Walter Hills, 20, an unemployed clerk, and Walter Williams, 19, an unemployed roofer—were spotted near the baggage claim area.

Copics International Co., Burlingame, announced the appointment of James Bunker, of Daly City, as assistant to the president of the firm, which manages some 800 Copico Centers in retail stores throughout California.

Post Office Tells DC Window Hours

Preparing for the annual deluge of Christmas mails, the Daly City Post Office's schedule of window service hours was announced by Postmaster Vincent P. Murphy.

The schedule for December 18 will be 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at Main Office, 1100 Sullivan Street and at the Westlake Station, 199 Southgate Avenue.

Vista Grande Station, 6025 Mission Street and Colma Station, 7373 Mission Street, will be opened from 8 a.m. to noon.

No Sunday Service will be provided at any station.

Weekday service at all stations until Monday, December

20 will be from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Normal window service hours will be resumed after that date.

Murphy also said Christmas mail users should use ZIP Code numbers for speedy delivery and return.

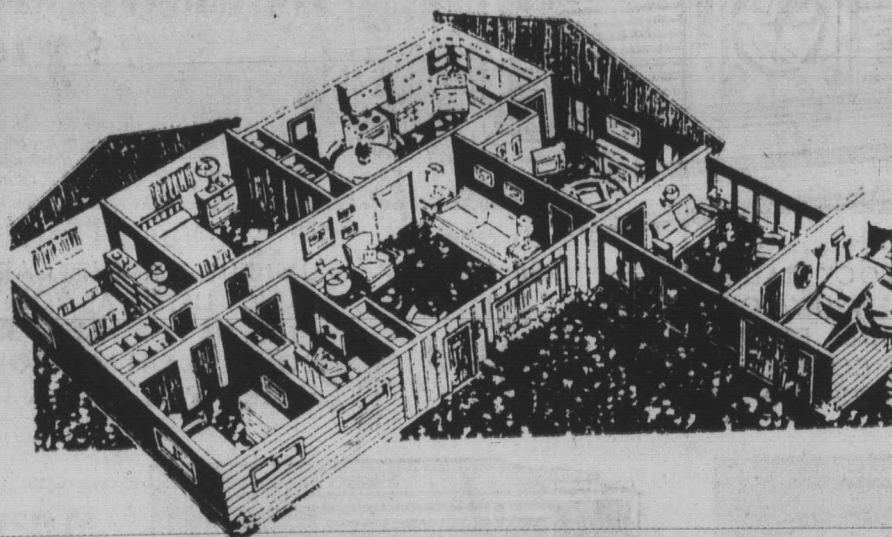

Use eight-cent stamps for Christmas cards, which allows for personal messages, forwarding and return of the article, he said, and be sure to package gifts in strong cartons and include a card in the parcel with the names and addresses of so that, in the event of the loss of the outside label, the article will be speeded to its destination instead of being delayed in Dead Letter offices.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY ★ LLOYD JOHNSON

Phil Lehr's A Realm Of Unique Dining Out

The elegant chandeliers were taken from the old Paramount Theater on Market Street. The mirrors with gilded edges once graced the house of ill-repute operated by Mammy Pleasant back in 1850, when a red light was more than a stop signal. All the decor and furniture, in fact, add a feeling of old San Francisco to Phil Lehr's Steakery, and when you step into its thick atmosphere you step into a realm of unique dining experience.

This high-ceilinged San Francisco restaurant is complete with a grand stairway which permits each customer to make a royal entrance, so to speak, by entering through the carriage entrance at Taylor and Ellis.

Phil Lehr is an institution in the restaurant business, for it was he, a number of years ago, who originated and perfected the meat counter concept, wherein each customer determines the size of his portion. This is predicated on two motions: to give only the customer what he truly desires, and to avoid excessive waste. This, in turn, is an economic advantage to the restaurateur in this trying time.

"Ebb Tide" One Of The Moonraker Favorites

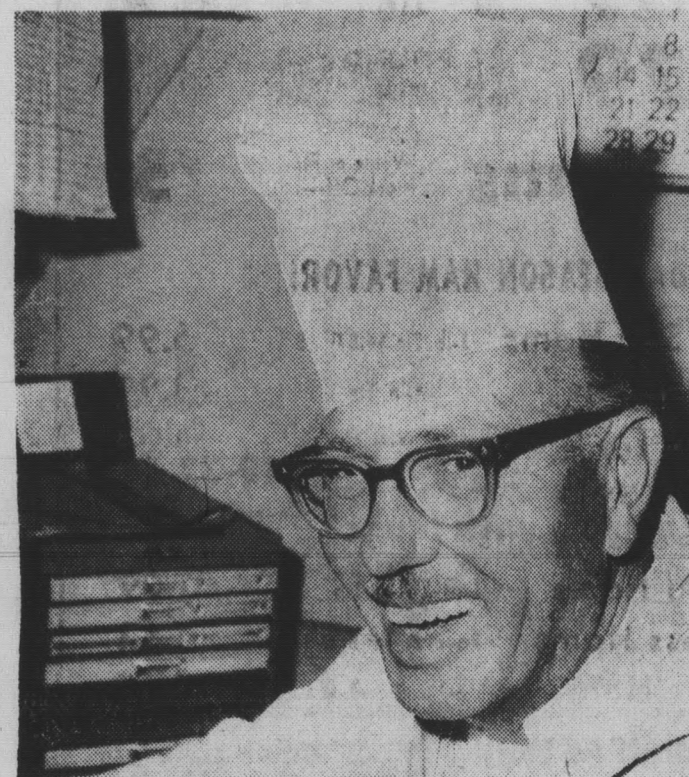

Don Kelly is the amiable young man providing organ music Wednesdays through Sundays at Nick Gust's fabulous Moonraker restaurant, located at Rockaway Beach in Pacifica. Don, who has a remarkably large repertoire of tunes, says the most requested number is "Ebb Tide," since the nautical restaurant is situated on a picturesque stretch of beach, looking out over the foaming Pacific ocean. . . . It's a merry time every night of the week at Nick's restaurant and lounge, where the extensive menu includes breakfast, lunch and dinner suggestions. Going for a drive? Coast Highway One will put you right at the scene of the action in Rockaway Beach. . . . Then there's the Papagayo Room, famous for its authentic Mexican fare and colorful decor (and don't discount the panoramic view of the coastline from every table) . . . Lucien Sabella's Cappuccino machine at A. Sabella's on Fisherman's Wharf is capable of producing either Cappuccino or Espresso coffee. Take your choice. Parking presents no problem here. Just around the corner from the plush restaurant is a large parking lot; have your ticket validated at the door.

Lew Lehr's Gift Certificate

Lew Lehr, the Marina Steakman, has a Christmas gift suggestion that will fit any budget and is enjoyed equally by men and women. Give up? It's a gift certificate from Lew Lehr's Steak House, in San Francisco. They're available in any amount, and, Hoo, Boy — those steaks! Magnificent aged New Yorks, filets and rib eyes, cut to your exact order. And with each gift certificate goes Lehr's traditional warm hospitality and gracious service. . . . The Prince of Pizza, Enrico Romano, is still wowing them with his superb pizza ingredients at his famed establishment at Rockaway Beach known as Romano's Italian restaurant.

MOST VALUABLE MAN — Bill Pickering, Executive Chef of the Stickney restaurants, is the key man, and has held the responsible post for 10 years. As executive chef, his duties far exceed overseeing the saucemans. His knowledge of purchasing, food costs, inventory and other business matters are equally important. At the Redwood City commissary for Stickney's, Bill supervises the making of the famous salad dressings, sauces, soups and stews used at all of the Stickney restaurants.

Oh For A Yard of Margaritas

Bill Rumbold, one of the "regulars" at the Lord Fletcher Inn was snowed in while on a hunting trip to Wyoming, and one of his first stops on the Peninsula when he returned was this Atherton restaurant to explain his absence to the gang. When asked of his thoughts during the experience, Bill said, "I kept thinking about my fondness for a yard of Margaritas." (His favorite libation when visiting the Inn) . . . Fresh crab is now in season, and Vince's Italian and Seafood restaurant will prepare it any way you like it — as an appetizer (half cracked crab or whole), a cocktail, salad topped with 'Louie' dressing, served in casserole (Crab Creole with Rice, Crab Legs and Prawns with Rice) or with spaghetti. For fresh seafood to prepare at home, (and that includes boiling pots of fresh crab), Vince's Fish Depot next door is a busy scene. . . . The intimate lounge at Scotty Campbell's in Redwood City is a pleasant spot for that martini before dinner or a B & B later. The inviting dining rooms convey something of a Williamsburg atmosphere with unusual warmth and dignity. The sweet smiles of co-owners Mary Lou Francis and Theresa Urban and merry quips from the bartenders are sure indications of a pleasant evening.

Hillsdale Inn Plans Big Party

Les Sasada, general manager of San Mateo's Hillsdale Inn, reports that he is now taking reservations for their annual New Year's Eve bash. $35 is the tab per couple which also includes accommodations from Friday noon to 6 p.m. New Year's Day. Celebrants feast on a champagne buffet dinner, served from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m., then spend the remainder of the evening dancing to the sounds of The Eastman Trio. Also included is a Bloody Mary Brunch on New Year's Day. Call the Inn for further information and reservations. . . . Much has been said about the remarkable soups served at Dave Rasmussen's Shadows of San Mateo, and chef Peter Selaya could certainly pick up some extra pocket change if he simply asked for a dime from everyone who requested his soup recipes. Not a day goes by without numerous patrons asking for The Shadows' soup ingredients. . . . Luncheon tip: Bangers and Mash, as served at The Prince of Wales, an authentic English pub in San Mateo. Owner Ken Gilley's menu is limited to only five or six items, but each is a specialty. Prices start at just $1 (Scottish Beef Pie).

New Airport Police Plans Inspire Debate

A re-organization of police functions at San Francisco International Airport is being planned by airports director James K. Carr, and not everyone there is happy about the plan.

Operations coordinator George Nessel comments that the chief of the proposed new Bureau of Security would be paid more money for doing less than he, Nessel, has been responsible for, for years.

As operations coordinator, Nessel is the head of airport policing, including the airfield security officers assigned to aircraft operational areas, as well as traffic officers for parking areas, safety officers inside the passenger terminals, and security for important visitors including kings and presidents.

Next man under Nessel is S. V. Tringali as operations supervisor, a position which may be discarded in the new Bureau of Security.

Carr said the chief of the Security Bureau would possibly be assigned only the policing duties Nessel now supervises, and that airfield security would possibly be retained in the airport operations department.

First move in the plan, Carr explained, is to move "security higher up in the organization," making the police department head responsible to Carr himself.

Second move, for which approval of the San Francisco supervisors is being sought, will be to hire a new chief.

The new man will probably be youngish but experienced in airfield security, the FBI, or some similar law enforcement background, Carr said.

One of his first tasks will be to decide how many new men are needed, and how they should be assigned, Carr said.

In practice, Carr said, the new police chief will probably be assigned to report through deputy director for maintenance and operations, Roy Samuels.

A supplemental appropriation to establish an airport Bureau of Security has been approved by the Airports Commission, and forwarded to Mayor Joseph Alioto.

His approval, and that of the supervisors, is expected next week.

Carr said the proposed Bureau of Security idea is supported by the Federal Aviation Administration, and by the airlines which serve San Francisco International.

"Last May, the FAA gave notice that new regulations would be adopted applying to airports regularly serving scheduled air carriers operating large aircraft," Carr said. "A basic and vitally important part of the new FAA regulations deals with overall airport security."

"San Francisco International Airport now lacks manpower and expert leadership to operate a Bureau of Security which would meet FAA standards."

Carr said he had been informed by existing personnel that "about 10 more" security officers are needed at the airport, and that a request for the additional personnel is before the city's budget bureau. He said he expects the new bureau chief to pick the new men.

"I want to get the new chief on the job, and have him review the entire security force," said Carr.

"We have a number of applications," Carr said, "from police chiefs, FBI men, airlines security people, and others."

"Some of the applicants have some broad experience."

"We need someone experienced in more than just plain law enforcement. We need someone stronger liaison with local law enforcement departments such as the San Mateo County Sheriff's Office."

Carr said he will be looking for someone with new and fresh ideas as well as experience because of the complexity of establishing and supervising a security program which will meet the minimum airport standards being set by the FAA.

"One fact which is indicative of the complexity of the job, is the daily population of the airport," said Carr.

"This includes a daily air passenger average of nearly 39,000, private and public employment of about 21,000, business and casual visitors plus family members and friends greeting or bidding farewell to air travelers, numbering about 78,000 daily."

Carr said the airport includes some 2400 acres of land, capital investments worth over $300,000,000, and an enormous air freight business which is suffering losses averaging $200,000 per year.

Nessel, whose operations coordinator office is on the ground level in a building separated from Carr's fourth floor office, says he has told Carr that he should be allowed to try the job. "Let me have the extra men," he said, "I've been trying to get them for years. Let me have the responsibility and the authority, and half the duties and half again more money."

"Let them try to find someone who can do the job George Nessel has been doing for years, with the staff and budget I've had to work with."

Censure of Board Urged By Millbrae

A move to censure the Regional Water Quality Control Board for its manner of pressuring cities to meet ever stiffer demands for sewage treatment and disposal was taken by the Millbrae City Council last week.

Council members agreed to ask the North County Council of Cities to "censure the Regional Board, and the State Water Board as well."

Councilman Art Lepore set the tone of the agreement when the council was asked to approve an $1150 contribution to a county-wide master-planning of sewage disposal.

"It seems to me," he said, "that the greatest deal of responsibility is being asked of those cities, such as Burlingame and Millbrae, which are already doing the most."

Lepore indicated a reluctance to join the county master-planning program, for fear of "getting locked into something over which we have little or no control."

Mayor James O'Connor said the study "is necessary. It comes from a very point blank statement by the Regional Water Quality Control Board that if we did not have a county-wide sewage disposal plan, there would be no monies coming to any city in the county from state or federal grants."

Mayor O'Connor said, "We are going to have to go deep channel (a mid-bay sewage outfall) and we are obviously going to be looking for state or federal funds."

Lepore countered: "We are getting deeper and deeper."

He said that Millbrae was at one time expected to join with Burlingame, then with San Bruno and South San Francisco, in creating new sewage disposal facilities, and now was expected to join a county-wide system.

"At every level, the appearance to Millbrae is a greater share of the cost."

O'Connor admitted this, but said: "We are going to have to go on farther. Burlingame and Millbrae are leading the pack, but we'll have to go to deep water."

He said a $3,000,000 expense is likely, for a mid-bay outfall line, and said Millbrae could work out a system jointly, with either Burlingame, or the South San Francisco-San Bruno disposal district, but within the county master plan.

Councilman William Glang also urged that the city not get locked in on costs.

Councilman Harold Purpus said he understands that Belmont, with a larger population, is contributing less money to the county study than Millbrae.

"What would happen if we would vote to contribute only $850, like Belmont," he asked.

Lepore said he was "willing to stick by this, but it looks like we will be dictated into a position that will cost more than we want it to, a decision we will have very little to do about."

O'Connor said Millbrae had to agree to join the master plan, not only because it will be seeking federal or state funds to improve its sewage disposal facilities, but because other cities in the county will also be seeking funds.

"There are 26 such districts in the county," he said, "none of them will get any money unless there is a county-wide plan."

Then he suggested the resolution of censure, against the Regional Board, asking the report of other cities in the North County Council.

Tests Ordered For Former D.C. Grid Star

Criminal proceedings against Willie R. Cook, 20, former Jefferson High School grid star, were temporarily suspended Dec. 6 and he was ordered by Superior Court to undergo up to 90 days of evaluation at the State Prison Medical Facility, Vacaville.

Judge W. Howard Hartley gave Cook, a student at the University of California, a stay until the end of the current school term, December 20, to begin the evaluation process.

Cook, who established rushing and touchdown records while a student at Daly City's Jefferson High, pleaded guilty in court last month to a charge of armed robbery in the $60 holdup of a Daly City market last April 30.

Broken Hip

A San Mateo man suffered a broken right hip and facial lacerations when he toppled from a scaffolding in Daly City Wednesday about 4 p.m.

Walter Stewart, 46, was working on a structure at 301 Gallert Avenue, when he fell. He resides at 1600 Echo Avenue, San Mateo.

School Tax Levels Told in S.M. County

While other school districts are raising taxes and projecting tax increases for next year, the Hillsborough school district in an annual report just issued reveals the elementary school district tax dropped 9.28 cents.

The total tax rate for the elementary schools' costs for 1971-72 is $3.3915 per $100 assessed valuation.

While the general purpose tax went up from $2.2545 to $2.2918, decreases in the bond rate from .3966 to .3655 and decreases in the areawide tax from .8332 to .7342 resulted in the large net reduction.

Hillsborough school district's total current budget went up at the same time by 5.59 per cent — from $1,721,235 to $1,817,501. The increase reflected from salary raises totalling $34,778, em-

S.F. Airport Security Funds Voted

A supplemental appropriation to finance organization of a Bureau of Security at San Francisco International Airport has been passed by the Airports Commission and forwarded to Mayor Joseph Alioto for approval.

The Board of Supervisors will also have to approve the action. Airports Director James K. Carr recommended the Commission action as essential and especially to comply with developing Federal Aviation Administration regulations related to the proposed "certification of Airports," under the airlines serving San Francisco International Airport and other major airline tenants.

"Last May, the FAA gave notice that new regulations would be adopted applying to airports regularly serving scheduled air carriers operating large aircraft," Carr said.

"One fact which is indicative of the complexity is the daily population of the airport," Carr said. "This includes a daily air passenger average of nearly 39,000. Employments, private and public, of all types average about 21,000 each 24 hours. Business and casual visitors, plus family members and friends greeting or bidding farewell to air travelers number an estimated 78,000 daily."

ploye health and welfare benefits costing $45,320, plus a rise in plant operations of $11,223 and another $6,944 in added instructional expenses.

Hillsborough's assessed valuation, the report points out, is $56,933,163, a 1.41 per cent increase over the previous year. The Hillsborough school district tax rate is the tenth lowest out of 17 school districts.

By comparison the others are as follows: Ravenswood, $4.6082; Jefferson, $4.5028; Portola Valley, $4.2294; San Bruno Park, $3.9380; Laguna Salada, $3.9221; Las Lomas, $3.8268; San Mateo, $3.7586; Belmont, $3.6625; Woodside, $3.5408.

Redwood City, $3.2787; San Carlos, $3.1027; Brisbane, $3.0824; Bayshore, $2.9997; Menlo Park, $2.8229; Millbrae, $2.3473, and Burlingame, $2.2084.

The district report notes that the Board of Education has adopted a district philosophy.

To better promote communication between parents and school administrators and teachers, each month, four Parent Group presidents meet with Superintendent Tod A. Anton in a roundtable discussion.

Probation For Bruno Collegian

Byron Lee McDonald, 22-year-old San Bruno college student, has been placed on two years probation and sentenced to 90 days in county jail for cultivating marijuana.

McDonald was arrested last May when police went to the apartment he shared with George Patterson, 20, to question Patterson concerning the fire bombing of the weekly San Bruno Herald newspaper building and discovered a planter box containing growing marijuana plants.

The sentence of McDonald was imposed this week by Superior Judge W. Howard Hartley. It was specified that he serve straight time in jail until January 11, and that he serve the balance of his term on weekends thereafter in order that he can resume his college studies.

Patterson, who pleaded guilty in Superior Court last month to a charge of attempted arson, is scheduled to be sentenced December 22.

New Airport Expense Told

A new airport to serve the Bay Area could cost between $1.0 and $1.5 billion including rapid transit costs. That is the estimated cost if a major airport were to be created in the Gilroy-Hollister area or at Travis in Solano County according to a report just released by the Association of Bay Area Government's Regional airport systems study committee.

Capital costs were determined for 37 alternative airport projects at 20 different Bay Area airports.

For Banker $302 Fine

Emmett G. Solomon of Hillsborough, chairman of the Crocker National Bank, was fined $302 and placed on six months probation yesterday in Northern District Municipal Court in South San Francisco after pleading guilty to a drunk driving charge.

Solomon, 62, 80 New Place Road, was arrested December 1 by the California Highway Patrol. His prior driving record was clear, however, and he was given the minimum first offense fine.

$40 Theft

In San Bruno

An unidentified man, who police think may have had the wrong address, wrestled with an apartment tenant before escaping with that tenant's $40 watch at knife point Thursday.

San Bruno police said Robert Manners, 25, of 855 Huntington Avenue, Apt. 8, responded to a knock on his door at about 8:30 p.m. to find a husky man with long black hair in his early 20's.

The man, according to police, told Manners, "I want the money your wife is keeping for me." Manners apparently tried to explain there must be a mistake and suddenly the pair were involved in a fist fight.

Police said they rolled on the apartment floor. Manners lost his wrist watch, and the suspect drew a four-inch pocket knife. After several minutes, the suspect got up grabbed the watch from the floor while holding his victim at bay with the knife.

teo, is also a collection center and is getting crowded. He said the other day a San Mateo woman came in and asked for help in unloading the trunk of her car. It was filled with canned goods.

San Mateo's Engine 3 at 31 Twenty-seventh Avenue is also beginning to collect contributions.

Captain Layne reported he received a telephone call yesterday from the governor's office in South Dakota. The Coordinator of Indian Affairs, Vernon Ashley, reported that messengers were sent out to the Chiefs of all the Sioux tribes. There are eight principal reservations. The messengers were alerting the Indians that Christmas is on the way.

He said that mail cannot get through because of impassable snows.

But there won't be any difficulty in delivering the supplies because, if necessary, the National Guard will use its half-tracks to get in through the passes.

The South Dakota National Guard has also been alerted to stand by and receive the shipment. The deadline is December 18.

Gunman Hits Supply Store

The ADL Auto Supply store at 2449 Geneva Avenue, Daly City, was robbed by a gunman Thursday.

An employee of the store told police a black youth, sporting a goatee and wearing gold rim glasses and a green rimless hat came into the store about 9:20 p.m. and took the money at gunpoint.

Tests Ordered For Former D.C. Grid Star

Criminal proceedings against Willie R. Cook, 20, former Jefferson High School grid star, were temporarily suspended Dec. 6 and he was ordered by Superior Court to undergo up to 90 days of evaluation at the State Prison Medical Facility, Vacaville.

Judge W. Howard Hartley gave Cook, a student at the University of California, a stay until the end of the current school term, December 20, to begin the evaluation process.

Cook, who established rushing and touchdown records while a student at Daly City's Jefferson High, pleaded guilty in court last month to a charge of armed robbery in the $60 holdup of a Daly City market last April 30.
